An American Record
The Biggest News
Lady Astor Has Fun
Honor to the Mikado

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

GEORGE HALDEMAN and Eddie Stinson, Americans, yesterday broke the world's endurance record in the air, flying without stopping 53½ hours.

The French government offers a million francs to any French flier that will win back some flying records formerly held by French fliers.

A LITTLE encouragement from our government would make it impossible for any nation to compete with American flying.

The first flying machine was made here. Lindbergh was born here. We have the money and engineers. This ought to be the flying nation.

THIS comes from Italy: 'Major de Bernardi has established a new world's air record—318¾ miles an hour.

Will solemn naval gentlemen that call flying machines "only an auxiliary" be good enough to tell what chance slow-moving ships on the surface would have against a flock of airplanes with that speed?

THE biggest news of the day is Mussolini's open attack on the pope and the Catholic Church. He issues an order that, "All organizations of Italian youth must be under Fascist direction." In 30 days all religious or other non-Fascist organizations for enrolling the young must disband.

LONDON says: "The Italian king will assert himself in defense of the Italian constitution or abdicate." Mussolini would take his job.

GREAT BRITAIN probably will allow women to vote at 21, as men do. Our intelligent contribution to the House of Commons, Lady Astor of Virginia, amused herself while the "votes for flappers" was discussed.

SHE pointed out that the "flappiest flapper" has an intellect above the average "cake eater," and referred to the opposition as "albatrosses tied around our necks." Lady Astor should come back and work in our own home Congress for a little while.

The new law will give 5,000,000 enfranchisements to 5,000,000 more women. Then 14,250,000 women will vote against 12,250,000 men. That ought to help Britain.

ON the great mountain called Nashan, in Manchuria, far up where air is pure and clear, Japan, as a monument to the new Emperor, will build the greatest astronomical observatory in Asia.

That observatory, with a sixty-inch reflector and thirty-inch refracting telescope will be a much nobler monument than any rearing horse of bronze.

HARVARD will make educational moving pictures, appropriating funds for a "university film foundation," letting schools and colleges use the films. Harvard hopes to make the enterprise self-supporting. Well done. It could make money enough to run Harvard College easily. A good picture is worth 10,000 words, and remains in the mind when the words are forgotten.

ANOTHER 4,000,000 share day on the stock exchange; in fact, a four million and a quarter share day. American Radio almost caught up with General Motors. It really is foolish to sell this country short, especially in a bull campaign.

* * *

A "100 to 1 shot," Tipperary Tim, won the Grand National steeplechase yesterday. An American horse led the race nearly all the way, four miles, 856 yards, the hardest course in the world. The American horse, Billy Barton, belonging to Mr. Bruce of Baltimore, fell at the last fence. His Irish jockey, Cullinan, remounted.

FINAL RUSH ON TO BEAT RISE IN PERMIT COST

New High Record Established in Two Days at City Clerk's Office

ISSUES 40 PERMITS

Last-Minute Applications Made to Escape Paying Increased Price

With the curtain scheduled to drop on the 50-cent building permit at midnight tonight, the office of the city clerk has been a mecca for those who anticipate building or who have already started to build. Twenty-four permits were issued yesterday afternoon and this morning by City Clerk Keller to those who wish to avoid the increase which will become effective Monday with the going into force of an ordinance passed by city council last month, and which provides for a scale of 50 cents for buildings of an estimated value up to $200 and a charge of $1 for buildings from $200 to $1,000 and $1 for each additional thousand.

Fifteen permits for new dwellings were issued yesterday afternoon while nine were issued for remodeling and for garages. The total estimated value of the buildings for which permits were issued was $42,490.

Realtors Get Permits

Permits for three dwellings on Spencer-st to cost $2,800 each and two to cost $2,400 each, and one on Oak-st to cost $2,800 together with five garages to cost $75 each were issued to Carl W. Schell.

Five permits for dwellings to be built on Homer-st, two to cost $3,000 each, one to cost $3,200, one to cost $2,700 and one to cost $2,500, were issued to Max Yarrington. Three permits were also taken out by J. P. Huling for three dwellings on Henry-st to cost $1,500 each.

Permits were also issued to W. R. Larson, 566 E. George-st, who will build a dwelling on Kenmore to cost $3,000 and will remodel a dwelling on Kenmore-st at a cost of $600; to Mrs. Margaret D. Key, 204 S. High-st, who will remodel a dwelling at a cost of $2,500. The American Railway Express who will remodel their depot at a cost of $800 and to W. H. Wintringham, 619 Cherry-st, who will build a garage to cost $340.

40 Issued in Two Days

With a total of 40 permits issued in the past two days calling for the construction of property of an estimated value of $80,200, a record has been established in the issuing of permits that will in all probability never be equalled in the city. Twenty-nine dwellings were provided for in the permits issued. A large number of these have already been started and some will not be started until later in the spring, it was frankly announced by builders.

BALLOTS OF PRIMARY NOT TO BE CHANGED

Death of Senator Willis Does Not Affect Legal Status in Ohio

Columbus, March 31—That the death of U. S. Senator Frank B. Willis has not changed the legal status of the Ohio presidential preference primary to be held April 24, is the decision announced here today by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown.

"Inasumch as all the formalities of Ohio election laws have been observed, affecting the presidential primary, the ballots printed in most of the counties throughout the state, and absent voters ballots, in many instances, have been cast, it is my opinion that, under Ohio law, the election situation remains entirely unchanged, and the ballots—both preference and delegate — shall carry the name of Senator Willis, the same as if his death had not occurred," declared Secretary Brown.

"I am, also, of the opinion that no change is made in the status of those candidates for delegates who have designated Senator Willis as their first choice," Brown said.

"I, therefore, am directing the deputy state supervisors of elections, in the various counties of Ohio, to proceed with the preparation of ballots in compliance with the official forms already certified to them," Brown announced.

"It seems hard to be called upon to rule on practical things at such a time," continued Brown, "yet, owing to the state and national interest in the politicial results of the senator's death, it is necessary that a statement be made as to the legal status so far as the presidential primary election is concerned."

REICHSTAG DISSOLVED

Berlin, March 31—Following a long and stormy session which was marked by bitter conflicts with the cabinet, the Reichstag was dissolved today. A new Reichstag will be chosen in the general election on May 20.

WEATHER OUTLOOK

Variety of Conditions Promised for Coming Week

Chicago, March 31—Weather outlook for the period of April 2-7.

Region of Great Lakes: Temperatures mostly above normal first part of week, followed by colder toward close; probably one or two precipitation periods.

Ohio Valley: Fair Monday, showers by Tuesday night or Wednesday, ending about Thursday. Showers again probably Saturday or Sunday. Temperature considerably above normal Monday and Tuesday. Colder Wednesday, below normal Thursday, and rising temperature Friday and probably Saturday.

ALL RECORDS SMASH ON STOCK EXCHANGE

Trading Volume and Price Fluctuations Reach New High Mark

New York, March 31—All records for trading volume on the New York Stock Exchange and other exchanges, as well as for the violence of price fluctuations, were broken this week, as stocks soared and crashed in a series of 4,000,000-share markets.

Continuing the smashing forward movement which has been in progress since the first part of March, a few of the high-priced speculative leaders jumped in dazzling fashion in the first session of the week, establishing to the satisfaction of all concerned the first 4,000,000-share day in the history of the exchange. Prior to that time there had been some dispute as to whether that goal had been reached. General Motors soared to within a point of $200 a share, and sharp gains were registered in Radio, International Nickel and other speculative favorites.

INVOKE CONGRESS

Business Wants To Free Nation of Rubber, Sisal Monopolies

Washington, March 31—The power of Congress was invoked today in the campaign of American business to free the national from the grip of foreign government-controlled monopolies in rubber, sisol and potash when the house rules committee presented the Newton bill for action.

A full day of debate was allotted to the measure, which permits American importers to combine their purchasing power without fear of violating anti-trust laws.

TWO SCORE INJURED IN CRASH NEAR LIMA

Crack Pennsylvania Flyers in Rear-End Collision in Isolated Section

Pittsburgh, March 31 — Battered, bruised and hours overdue, more than a hundred survivors of the wreck of the Broadway and Liberty Limiteds, two of the crack flyers of the Pennsylvania Railroad, arrived in Pittsburgh today, from Lima, Ohio, where more than two score of their fellow passengers were injured in a rear-end collision of the two trains.

The majority of the survivors continued on eastward after having been brought here from Lima in a special train made up of the remnants of the two flyers.

The injured brought here had been treated on the train at the scene of the wreck while those seriously hurt remained in hospitals at Lima.

The vicinity in which the wreck occurred had been isolated by a blizzard that swept through the district yesterday.

FORTY HOURS OPENS AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH

Will Begin Sunday Morning; Holy Week Services Are Announced

Announcement was made today by Rev. F. X. Cotter, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, of the services with which Palm Sunday and Holy Week will be observed Sunday and succeeding days at St. Mary's.

Services at the church Sunday will open with the blessing and distribution of palms at 7 o'clock mass. Forty Hours Devotion in honor of the Blessed Sacrament which extends through Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, will begin at 8:30 a. m.

Holy Week service proper will begin on Thursday, when there will be a high mass with procession of the Blessed Sacrament at 8 a. m. On Friday the "Mass of the Pre-Sanctified" will be celebrated at a service at the same hour and on Saturday morning, at 6 o'clock, there will be a service for the blessing of the fire, Easter and baptismal water and celebration of high mass.

Arrangements have also been made for services on Good Friday afternoon.

NAOMI CLOUSE WINS ORATORY CONTEST HERE

Gets Judges' Decision in Contest for County Honor Last Night

LIVES AT EDISON

Will Participate in District Semi-Finals in Marion April 20

Miss Naomi Clouse of Caledonia High School will represent Marion County in the National Oratorical Contest.

This was determined last night in Star Auditorium when Miss Clouse won the judges' decision two to one, in the county elimination contest.

Miss Clouse, whose home is in Edison, will be among a dozen who will take part in the district semi-finals here Friday night, April 20.

At that time prizes totalling $150 will be given along with the right to represent The Marion Star's district in the state final at Canton a week later.

Two Participants

Miss Clouse and Miss Luella Northrup of Prospect High School took part in the contest last night, the third entrant Carl Whitman of LaRue being forced out because of illness.

Whitman was the first student to enter in the contest in The Star district. For the past week he has been suffering with glandular fever. He held hopes of getting into the contest until late yesterday when his physician declared he must remain in for another week.

Miss Clouse spoke on "The Significance of the Constitution," while Miss Northrup spoke on "The Development of the Constitution." The oration of Miss Clouse is found on page 2 of this issue.

R. F. Fletcher, advertising manager of The Star, presided at the contest, while Judge George B. Scofield of Common Pleas Court acted as chairman of the judges. The two other judges were Rev. J. W. Schillinger and Miss Edith Brown.

VAST DAMAGE DONE BY SLEET DOWNPOUR

Wire Systems North of Marion County Devastated by Storm

Northern Ohio and particularly the region immediately to the northwest of Marion today was untangling itself from the effects of one of the worst sleet storms experienced in years.

The storm came Thursday with a swirl of rain and wind and dropping temperature. Hardin and Wyandot Counties were hard hit.

Telephone and power lines were crashed to the ground when the poles were unable to bear the weight of the heavily ice-encrusted wires. In many places wires were coated with ice to a thickness of more than an inch.

According to C. S. Biddle, 355 Franklin-st, a traveling salesman, who covered Hardin and Wyandot Counties yesterday, many towns faced the prospect of being without telephone and light service last night as a result of the storm. Upper Sandusky, Carey, Wharton, Mt. Blanchard and Forest were particularly hard hit. Telephone

PRAY FOR CHICAGO

Evangelist to Appeal to Nation Over Radio Sunday

Chicago, March 31—The nation will be asked to pray for Chicago in an appeal sent out over the radio tomorrow from the tabernacle of Paul Rader, famed Chicago evangelist.

He declared an effort would be made to have the call rebroadcast by amateur short wave lengths so that all nations of the world might hear the appeal and pray for Chicago's "regeneration."

BODY OF DEAD SENATOR TAKEN TO HOME TODAY

CYRUS LOCHER MAY SUCCEED LATE SENATOR

Belief Held Governor Donahey Will Appoint Director of Commerce to Post

IS NOW CANDIDATE

Friends of Cox, Allen, Pomerene, Baker, White Expected To Boost Them

Columbus, March 31—Belief that Gov. Vic Donahey will appoint Cyrus Locher, Democrat, Cleveland, to succeed the late U. S. Senator Frank B. Willis as one of Ohio's representatives in the upper house of Congress was voiced here today by intimate friends of the governor. Locher, as state director of commerce, is a member of the governor's cabinet.

To date, Locher is the only candidate who has formally announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator, subject to the state-wide primaries next August.

Locher was a candidate for the senatorship two years ago, but withdrew, prior to the primaries, in favor of former U. S. Senator Atlee Pomerene, Cleveland, who was nominated by the Democrats and waged an unsuccessful contest against Senator Willis' aspirations for re-election.

State officials expressed the opinion that the governor's appointment of a successor to Senator Willis will not be made earlier than the middle, or latter part, of next week.

They pointed out that the governor must await formal notification by the U. S. Senate that the seat of Senator Willis is vacant.

Whoever is appointed by Donahey, it was stated, will serve until a successor to Senator Willis is elected at the Ohio polls next November and is duly sworn in at Washington. The candidate who is elected next November, it was stated, will fill out the term of Senator Willis which expires on March 4, 1933.

Friends of former Gov. James M. Cox, Dayton publisher; former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, Cleveland; Judge Florence Allen, Ohio Supreme Court; George White, Marietta, former Democratic national committeeman; former Senator Pomerene and Claude Meeker, Columbus broker, are expected to urge Donahey to appoint one of them as U. S. senator.

WARNER TO CONVENE COMMITTEE SESSION

State Organization's Plans on Choice of Candidate Undecided

Whether the Ohio Republican Central Committee will align itself with a second choice candidate for Republican nomination for president as the result of the death of Senator Willis, its first choice, was not known by Fred W. Warner, chairman, early this morning.

Shortly after 8 o'clock M. Warner left for Delaware, where a few hours before he had been one of the speakers at the Homecoming celebration which ended in the death of Senator Willis. Later in the day Mr. Warner planned to continue to Columbus, where he will confer with other Republican leaders.

That action of some kind would be taken by the Central Committee soon was intimated by the chairman. Mr. Warner will call a meeting which will probably be held the first of the week.

That the committee may not feel called upon to pledge its support to any one candidate before the convention in June, was also intimated by Mr. Warner.

20,000 YOUTHS WANT TO TAKE MILITARY TRAINING

Washington, March 31 — Military training apparently grows more popular each year.

The War Department has received 20,000 applications for admission to next summer's military camps, which is 5,000 more than were received in 1927. A total of 30,000 will be admitted to camps next summer, the same number as last year.

Services Will Be Held Either at Gray Chapel, Ohio Wesleyan University, Where Presidential Aspirant Died, or at Asbury M. E. Church, Delaware

ALL OHIO MOURNS FOR FAVORITE SON

Death Occurs Suddenly While Homecoming Celebration Is Being Held; Senator Was Preparing To Make Address When Illness Strikes Him

DELAWARE, March 31—Funeral services for Senator Frank B. Willis will be held here Tuesday, it was announced today.

The services are expected to be held either at Gray Chapel, Ohio Wesleyan University, where Senator Willis died last night, or at the Asbury M. E. Church. Complete arrangements will be made upon the arrival of Lloyd Willis, brother of the senator, who is expected to arrive here from Chicago this afternoon.

Mrs. Willis, who spent the night at the home of her parents, at Galena, was also to return here later today. The body is to be removed to Senator Willis' home in N. Franklin-st late this afternoon. It will be escorted by eight militiamen of Company K, Ohio National Guard who kept guard over the bier last night.

By order of Governor Donahey, Adjt. Gen. Frank Henderson today hoisted a new flag to half-mast over the Statehouse at Columbus, honoring the memory of Senator Willis. The portrait of Senator Willis, made during his term as governor, was taken from its position on one of the walls in the Statehouse rotunda and was placed upon a draped easel in front of the regimental flag of his late father, Jay Bartlett Willis, in the rotunda. Senator Willis' father served as a member of the 33rd Ohio Volunteer Infantry during the Civil War.

The entire state of Ohio was in mourning today for its favorite son, Senator Willis, who died suddenly here at 9:00 o'clock last night in the midst of a homecoming welcome prepared by thousands of his fellow citizens.

Stricken by a cerebral hemorrhage, Senator Willis collapsed and died a few moments before his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination was to have been launched in his native city.

National guardsmen of Delaware, called by their commandant, stood guard over the body in a little funeral parlor here this morning while the Senator's grieving relatives made arrangements for the funeral.

Marion Band Plays

Stunned residents of this city were still dazed today by the suddenness with which the end came. Gray Chapel, where the senator was to have delivered a speech, was crowded with his admiring fellow-citizens. Kadgar Grotto Band of Marion, marching at the head of a red light parade in which the senator rode, had played ragtime airs. A quartet from Columbus sang vocal selections.

As the program went along Senator Willis arose from the seat of honor. Calling O. A. Jones, his secretary, the senator said;

"Jones, I've never felt this way in my life. Something's awfully wrong."

He went outside the chapel auditorium and calling for his wife, the senator then staggered and fell dead in his secretary's arms just as the last strains of "Farewell" sung by the glee club wafted through from the reception hall.

A physician, called from the audience, pronounced death due to cerebral hemorrhage.

Ill Thursday, Claim

Mrs. Willis, prostrated by the tragedy, said she believed her husband had been made ill by the fumes of the torches in the parade to the chapel. She said that during the singing he had complained that he did not feel well.

The senator's fellow-townsmen marched slowly out of the hall with bowed heads when his illness was announced from the platform. Word of

COOLIDGE SENDS NOTE OF SORROW

Washington, March 31—President Coolidge today sent the following message of condolence to Mrs. Frank B. Willis, widow of the Ohio senator:

"News of the sudden passing of your husband has been a great shock to me. His rendered distinguished service in the upper assembly, both as governor of Ohio and also in the national House and Senate, He was an earnest and effective advocate of causes which he considered just, and a man of splendid character. His going will be a distinct loss to our public life. Mrs. Coolidge joins me in deep sympathy for you and your daughter and for all suffering with friends."

DEATH CAUSES CONFUSION IN G.O.P. CIRCLES

Willis One of Central Figures in Movement To Stop Secretary Hoover

Washington, March 31—The sudden and dramatic death of Senator Frank B. Willis of Ohio, was a severe shock today to political Washington.

He was one of the central figures in the movement to "Stop Hoover," and his death, while in the thick of the fight, threw considerable confusion into the ranks of those who are intent upon keeping the secretary of commerce from getting the Republican presidential nomination at Kansas City next June.

Willis and Hoover were contesting for Ohio's 51 convention delegates and the fighting was just getting warm.

The first reaction of the politicians was that Willis' sudden removal from the scene left the Ohio field clear for Hoover. Examination of the Ohio primary law, however, revealed the inaccuracy of this conclusion, and although the senator's death has enormously complicated the work of "stopping Hoover," the opposition was still unwilling today to concede that they have lost their fight on the Buckeye battleground.

Break Away Feared

There are 51 Willis candidates in the field in Ohio, and under the law all have secondary choices. Thirty-one of these are said to be favorable to Hoover, with the rest split among Lowden, Curtis and a few scattered. If the anti-Hoover sentiment can be kept crystallized and disciplined, the opponents of the Cabinet candidate may yet prevent him from getting the majority of the 51 delegates.

It remains to be seen, however, whether this anti-Hoover sentiment can be kept crystallized, considered as it is

Here is Oration Which Won County Title for Caledonia High School Girl

NAOMI CLOUSE

Nations like structures need firm foundations on which to stand. Without this security governments like buildings fall to destruction from violent storms of protest. The strong men who founded the foundation of our government sought liberty and the will determination, keen minds and the counsel of Almighty God this was given.

How great were the minds of those famous men of history, how definite their purpose to secure a government to meet every national need and every personal peril. How devoutly could we say with Franklin, "God governs in the affairs of men." Still today, the Constitution of the United States, the pride and glory of our country forms the firm foundation of our republic.

The great framers of the Constitution sought to form a "more perfect union" having been driven into pitfalls of injustice they wished to "establish justice." Troubled with quarrels and rebellions they strived for "domestic tranquility." As a protection against foes and foreign perils they sought to "provide for the common defense." Because of their weakened and impoverished state they longed to "promote the general welfare." For fear of the dreaded persecutions so common years before they wished to remain free in "securing the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity."

Experience had proven their greatest need. In these six great articles was the utmost desire of every framer.

Nowhere do we find the government which fulfills so in detail the needs of its people today. It is these great blessings guaranteed to us by the Constitution which have made it the greatest document of all mankind. The temptation to establish a monarchy was great. Instead they removed the crown sovereignty from the heads of tyrannical kings to the heads of the nation's citizens. The results have been success. Everywhere monarchies are falling. Yes, the Constitution is significant every day to every citizen of the United States as a guarantee of rights that led people of all other countries to come crowding to the United States to enter into citizenship and to share the blessings of good government.

Americans, our Constitution proclaims religious freedom today. Surely it is a blessing beyond comprehension! Our forefathers came to this country to secure this freedom which they never before had experienced. May this precious jewel never be lost in the wilderness of misunderstanding. Let us be thankful for this great blessing to worship God in freedom and understanding for the betterment of our land.

The Constitution gives equal rights to all individuals. After a test of seven-score years it still proves essential to a successful nation. It also reveals that justice should stand. "Constant is the northern star of whose true fixed and resting quality there is no fellow in the firmament."

The Constitution not only provides our nation today with a reliable government but paves the way for those who follow that they too may lift higher its standards and its rights. Let us consider our duties today. The Constitution left responsibilities as well as blessings to the generations who were to follow. Are we paying our respects to those brave heroes by obeying the laws and observing the rights which were so laboriously adopted? This is what it means to us today. Our God-given chart is what we make of it.

Many a stone of advancement has been added to this foundation until our grand bold, starry banner is now waving the Stars and Stripes, the galaxy of American freedom, unity and independence. May we ever cou-rage to grow and to higher our glorious emblem looking to God as our guide and our helper.

RETURNS FROM TOLEDO

Mrs. Clara Smith, 419 Sedgwick, has returned home from Toledo where she was called due to the illness of her son, Walter A. Smith, a former Marion man, who recently underwent an abdominal operation at St. Vincent Hospital, Toledo. Mr. Smith is reported to be getting along fairly well.

PRESLEY WINGO TO BE HONOR GUEST SUNDAY

Event at Church To Celebrate His Eightieth Birthday Anniversary

A gathering of relatives and friends in honor of Presley Wingo, one of the members of the Wesleyan Methodist Mission on N. State-st, will be among the features of Sunday's program at the church.

The event is planned in observance of the eightieth anniversary of Mr. Wingo's birth. March 29 was the date of the anniversary.

A basket dinner is to be served at 12 o'clock noon to relatives and friends of Mr. Wingo from Marion and vicinity and also Columbus and Cleveland.

Mr. Wingo was born in Jackson, Pike County and has resided in Marion approximately 40 years. He was formerly engaged in the grocery business here but is now retired at his home on N. State-st.

The church building where the anniversary event is to take place was formerly located in the country district near Agosta, where Mr. Wingo lived and was engaged in farming prior to coming to Marion.

The building was moved to its present location on N. State-st a number of years ago, Mr. Wingo assisting in the work.

Arrangements for Sunday's event in his honor have been in charge of Mr. Wingo's daughter, Mrs. Carrie Stewart of Columbus. Other members of his family are another daughter, Mrs. Mary Cranmer, N. Main-st, and a son, Frank Wingo, of Alger.

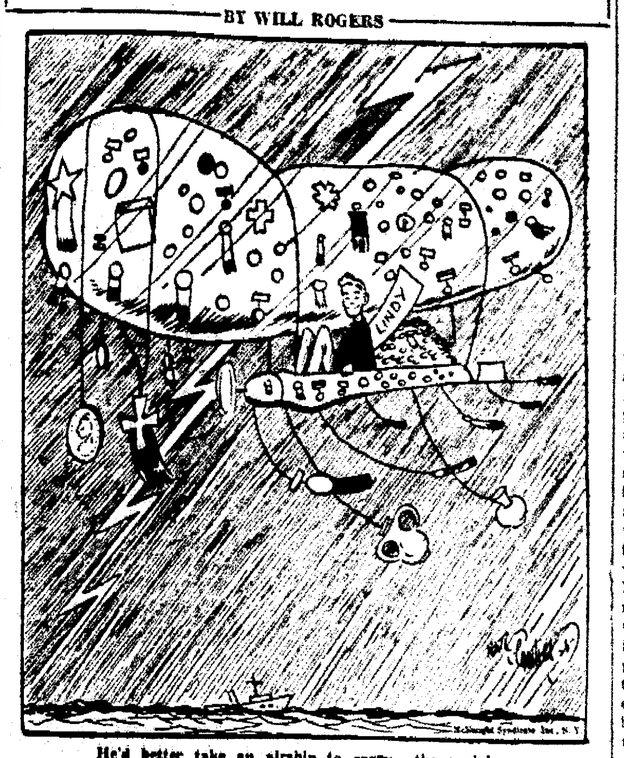
More Medals For Lindy

Somebody Ought to Strike Off a Medal for Congress, Will Rogers Says; But What For, He Wants to Know

BY WILL ROGERS



He'd better take an airship to carry the medals

WELL, all I know is just what I read in the papers. Lindy grabbed off another Medal. If he ever makes another Ocean flight and carries his medals with him he will have to take one of those big sausage-shaped Dirigibles. WE used to think that Sousa had more medals than anybody. You remember we just were able to see his Baton waving out in front of a solid breastwork of medals. He had so many it acted as a sounding board, and Flats and Sharps bounced off those inscriptions and welded themselves into real harmony.

Lindy has so many that it will just take one man shining them. Coolidge gave him this latest one. In fact Coolidge has given him most of them. If Cal would have given the Farmers a little speck of relief every time he handed Lindy a medal they would be almost out of the poor house by now. He has pinned so many medals on Lindy he can reach up and do it in the dark and hit the right place. This last one was a "Congressional Medal" that Congress gave to Lindy.

Would Be Popular

I am sorry that Lindy can't reciprocate and present Congress with one. Nobody has ever suggested giving Congress a medal. These Congressional ones are given for "Valor and bravery beyond the ordinary duties." I believe I will have one struck off and give it to Congress and Senate for, "Endurance in Oratory beyond and far on the other side of the duties for which they were elected." I will raise the funds by popular subscription, VERY POPULAR subscription. Congress would feel so proud over getting a medal that it might encourage them. Because there is times when I feel that they feel that they are not appreciated. When they get through giving Lindy all these Medals, which he deserves, why don't they give him some lifetime job, like Secretary of Aviation, or Commander and Chief of our forces in the air, or President of Commercial Aviation, or something that would keep him directly in touch with the air forces and still give us the benefit of his knowledge and consul. Course in discussing the news of the day you can't get anywhere in a paper without stumbling over a Tea Pot. We have had more excitement over a Tea Pot than England has had over all her tea she has drank for years.

This term of Congress which we expected so much of, will go down in history as the Tea Pot Congress. They couldn't pass any bills, for everybody was on the stand testifying somewhere. Anybody that they hear of that knows anything they will go out to his house and hold court.

Makes It Easy

Its the most accommodating court I ever saw. Their slogan is, "Testimony taken in your homes while you eat." "Testimony made easy." They are going to El Paso now. They have been to Chicago a couple of times, and New York. If they can just locate somebody up in Seattle, that will give them a great trip.

You see the reason this investigation has dragged along so long is, these people who are testifying have all testified before many times, but the first few times you testify they don't expect you to tell anything. It's just to kinder get you used to testifying. It takes sometimes about five or six trials with you before you really tell much that you know. In other words they have to find out what you know before you will testify to it. No witness yet has ever told what he knew until the Committee had known first what he knew, and then made him tell it. They let a witness go for awhile till they find out some more on him, and then bring him back and make him testify to this last that they have found out. One witness tried to say that he thought the Democrats had gotten some money too. But that was so laughable that it was almost funny. If the man had given money to the Democratic cause it would not have left him liable for corruption, but to the insane asylum.

The Democrats wanted to follow up that clue and see if there really was any truth in it, and find out who it was and let him go ahead and give if he would.

I just came out of Florida last week, was all over the State, and naturally everybody wonders how they are making out. Well, I want to tell you they are coming back strong. They had a wonderfully successful Tourist season down there this winter and they were all still there staying late, and all the Tourists were satisfied, they were not pestered to buy any lots. They dident buy anything and they also was not overcharged at the Hotels. They sent away a lot of satisfied customers. Heretofore a lot of people always come out kicking about how they had been overcharged, but not this year, and mind you it was not a bad year up north this winter either. Let it be a real bad winter and there will be no holding them in Florida. They have some splendid roads there, and they are doing all they can to develop their crops, copying California in their marketing.

Everybody Sorry

You know everybody I think felt sorry for Florida. It really wasent the real people of Florida that was responsible for what happened. It was the outside grafter that come in there, put on all this boom and then ducked out, leaving the poor real Floridians with the bag to hold. But they are sticking it out bravely and not hollering, and charged off the high prices to profit and loss, and are starting in now and will be on a sounder foundation than ever. In fact the whole South is stepping. States have found the recipe for success now and no one of them has a monopoly on it. They are all doing the same thing that California did: first, build good roads, encourage diversified crops, encourage Factories to locate in their State. They all know now that certain things will bring certain results, and they all are practicing it. No State now has a monopoly in progress. If a new thing comes out that will help a State, why in a month every other State knows about it and has it. When the people come South to the Democratic Convention they will have their eyes opened to what has taken place in the old South.

ANNOUNCING TWO NEW INSURANCE IDEAS

50-50 Plate Glass Insurance

FIVE YEARS OUT OF SIX YOU CAN SAVE MONEY WITH OUR 50 - 50 POLICY

Many thousand merchants are now insured under our 50 - 50 policy, and not one of them would consider going back to the old method where the policy-holder pays a full year's premium in advance.

A SIMPLE AND PRACTICAL PLAN:

Instead of collecting the standard plate glass premium we collect only 50%, and let you retain the other 50%. If you have no losses during the policy year, you keep and save half of your regular premium. On the other hand, if you do have a loss, we reset the glass for you, and you pay us the net cost of the replacement—up to the uncollected 50% of your premium. After that, we pay all your losses in full, until the policy expires.

Your Insurance cannot possibly cost you any more than the standard premium, and statistics prove conclusively that our 50-50 plan will save you money.

Every Kind of Insurance Except Life.

Rent Business Interruption
Burglary Holdup
Rain Plate Glass
Accident & Health
Automobile—Full Coverage

Over Sixteen Years of Insurance Service.

50-50 Automobile Collision Insurance

WITHOUT A DOUBT, YOU CAN SAVE MONEY WITH OUR 50 - 50 PLAN

This new idea has been meeting with wide favor over the entire country. The 50-50 plan eliminates the necessity of paying a full year's collision premium in advance.

ANOTHER SIMPLE AND PRACTICAL PLAN

Under this method you pay 50% of the regular full coverage collision premium. If during the term of the policy you have an accident and report the claim to the company, you pay the other 50% of the premium. The company will then pay the full amount of your damage, after which you are fully covered for the balance of the term of your policy.

By this plan you will have the advantage of full coverage collision, if needed. If you do not have an accident, you have saved 50% of your premium. Your insurance cannot possibly cost you any more than the standard premium.

SAYS JAILS CONTAIN MANY 'JAZZ HOUNDS'

D. V. S. Criminal Law Instructor Pictures Faults of Modern Music

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, March 31—Jazz has no more resemblance to good music than the paper-covered dime novel of the 'Diamond Dick' variety has to good literature, in the opinion of Norman D. Lattin, criminal law instructor in the College of Law at Ohio State University, and noted violinist.

"Jazz music, however, has a place to fill in the world, but only in the dance hall or the cafe where no one listens too intently," Professor Lattin maintains. "As a general diet it would 'go begging' in no time."

Professor Lattin believes that 'jazz hounds' are plentiful in the jails and prisons of the country while the people who have been brought up in the atmosphere of good music are scarce in those institutions.

"Jazz is so attractive to the masses because it is so simple that even a moron can understand it," the professor says.

"That sort of music isn't new. Listen to any Beethoven symphony and it is possible to hear better and more syncopation than is found in the average jazz selection," he declared.

Veterans of Warfare Seldom Anxious to Go Through Fire of Battle Again, Says Leader of Local G. A. R.

"A MAN may say he isn't afraid in battle—may not be afraid, in fact— but after he's once been under fire you'll notice that he isn't overjoyed at the thought of having the same experience again."

Such is the emphatic opinion of Charles Wiley, E. Church-st, Commander of Cooper Post, G. A. R., and one of Marion's fast decreasing line of veterans of the Civil War. Having been through the Wilderness campaign up to Spottsylvania, Mr. Wiley is well qualified to pass his opinion on the subject of warfare.

Mr. Wiley's parents, like all parents of excitement-loving sons, persistently refused to allow him to enter the war. But about three years of urging and pleading, they signed the papers for him, February 19, 1861, permitting him to enlist as one of the 11th Pennsylvania infantry. At the opening of the war this infantry had been in service for three months, and after a furlough of 30 days was re-enlisted for three years. It was sent to the front and in the fall of 1861 re-enlisted again for three years.

Notable Victory

The first re-enlistment came after a victory at Falling Waters, which had been so decisive that the government requested that the troops re-enter service. The regiment was in all the principal battles of the Potomac and during its service 19 of its color-bearers were either killed or wounded.

The first person whom Mr. Wiley saw killed was a boy from his own neighborhood. The troops were resting on their arms when a stray shrapnel whizzed by Wiley's ear and cut its way through the body of the boy, killing him instantly.

"A man may become hardened to seeing other people killed, but he never gets over the habit of dodging when he hears a bullet zipping his way," the Marion veteran relates. "Some say they've never dodged a bullet when they were under fire, but they have reference to those that 'zoom' over head, not the bullets that cut the air too close to one's ears for comfort."

Wounded Hand Saved

Seven days after he was 17 Mr. Wiley was shot in the right hand and was taken to Arlington Hospital, where he was given a 30 days' furlough. Later he was transferred to West Pennsylvania Hospital, from which he was discharged for disability March 4, 1865. Surgeons at the hospitals wanted to amputate his hand, but Mr. Wiley refused to hear of such a thing, and as a result still is able to use his hand.

Mr. Wiley's father saw intensive action with the 15th Pennsylvania Cavalry, participating under General Thomas in his campaigns through the south.

Mr. Wiley was born in West Moreland County, Pa., May 3, 1847. Sept. 22, 1865 three years after his discharge he married Miss Jane Miller, also living in West Moreland County. Four of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley's six children are living: Mrs. Minnie Young, Chicago; Mrs. J. C. Hacker, Cleveland; Mrs. D. E. Scott, Greenwood-st, Marion; Mr. S. H. Wiley, Barberton. Miss Ruth Vera Young, daughter of Rev. W. S. Young, Davids-st, Miss Ruth Joan Rodgers, Barberton, and Paul Keene, Cleveland, are their three great grandchildren.

For three years Mr. Wiley has been Commander of Cooper Post. Mr. and Mrs. Wiley are living at their home, 148 E. Church-st, both with a serene, good-natured outlook on life, and enjoying the love and friendship which they have won from their associates.

STORM PLAYS HAVOC WITH RAILWAY WIRES

Ice-Coated Line Reported Down on Roads Running Through Marion

Storms of yesterday and Thursday night practically paralyzed telegraph and telephone service on Marion railroads running to the north and west.

No damage was done in Marion County, a check revealed today, but on the Hocking Valley from Carey north and on the Erie west of Kenton about 50 percent of the poles were down. The lines were a tangled mess of ice-coated wire.

All line crews and available gangs were pressed into service and the situation was somewhat improved today and though in many localities it is still in a crippled condition.

Very few delays were noted in the passenger service with a majority of the trains arriving at Union Station here on scheduled time.

Attend Funeral

Funeral services for Orland S. Rapp, prominent Marion business man, held yesterday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church were attended by a number of Hocking Valley Railroad officials.

Those who attended were M. S. Conner, general manager of the Toledo Division, William Michel, chief engineer, W. W. Houston, superintendent and Albert Singleton, purchasing agent, all of Columbus.

Mr. Rapp died suddenly at his home Wednesday morning.

Through his office as vice-president of the Prendergast Lumber Co. he came in contact with the railroad men. He was buried in Marion Cemetery.

By offering a car so advanced in design, so modernly equipped and so completely appointed, Oldsmobile has opened the fine-car field to thousands once barred by price.

Not only are there provided the basic elements of fine car performance, beauty and construction—but in addition are included numerous items ordinarily listed as extras.

In addition to the added values they represent, these features lend new delight to the power, speed and smoothness of the new Oldsmobile 55 h. p. high compression engine.

They emphasize the impressiveness of Oldsmobile beauty, which expresses the whole new spirit of our times.

Beyond all doubt, they stamp the new Oldsmobile as a unique achievement in fine-car building—a car you will want to drive—and want after you drive it.

CONFUSION IN G. O. P. CAUSED BY DEATH

Willis One of Central Figures in Movement To Stop Secretary Hoover

among the rest of the field. The Hoover managers do not think it can be, and it may be that they are right.

Undoubtedly, it was pointed out here today, some of the Willis declared candidates were kept in line because of personal and political attachment to the senator, who came as near being the Republican "boss" of Ohio as anyone has since the death of Mark Hanna. Willis was the patronage dictator of the state, and through his judicious distribution of federal offices had built himself a personal machine that was the envy of less fortunate politicians. Some of those who were his delegates were committed to him, it is said, solely because of their dependence upon him for further political favor in the state.

Primary April 24

Now that Willis is gone, the question was being asked among the politicians today whether these delegates will stand firm. The evident fear of the anti-Hoover camp is a rush for the Hoover bandwagon. If that can be deterred—and prevented—the Hoover opposition may be shaken, but it still is determined.

The Ohio preference primary is but a scant three weeks away. It is set for April 24, leaving but a short time in which to corral aid discipline the weakened anti-Hoover forces in the state.

Even with Willis alive and personally directing the fight, most politicians were ready to concede the secretary of commerce a part of the Ohio delegation. The Willis leieutenants themselves privately admitted that Hoover could not be kept from getting 10 or a dozen delegates from the populous cities like Cincinnati and Cleveland where Willis was unpopular because of his radical prohibition views.

May Be Near Nomination

In all the tables which the Hoover managers have privately compiled to show that he will have in excess of 400 votes on the first ballot they have figured on about 15 Ohio delegates. In their more optimistic moments they have claimed a majority of the 51, but the practical politicians of Washington have doubted this.

If now, however, there is anything like a concerted movement to the Hoover standard on the part of those who were held to Willis because of personal or political attachment, it was pretty generally conceded today that Hoover is within sight of the nomination.

One table of Hoover's delegate strength, privately compiled and circulated in Washington, claims for him 488 delegates, with only 12 from Ohio included. If this number from Ohio is now increased to 40 or more it brings the Cabinet candidate within sight of the nomination, which requires only 545.

The next three weeks probably will tell the story. At least so far as Ohio is concerned.

Mr. Spring was the guest of his parents last night.

After completing the tour Mr. Spring, in company with Karl Eschman, professor of music at the Conservatory at Denison, will return to Chicago to attend a five-day convention for supervisors and directors of music.

Mr. Spring graduated from Harding High School with the class of '25. He is a member of Phi Mu Alpha fraternity orchestra and of the Denison String Quartet.

CUNNINGHAM GETS THEATER CONTRACT

Will Install Plumbing and Heating Equipment in New W. Center-st Building

The contract for the plumbing and heating equipment at the new Palace theater now under course of construction at W. Center and Campbell-sts, has been awarded to T. M. Cunningham of this city, it was announced this morning. While no figures were given, the contract, it is said, is around $20,000, and provides for steam heating for the entire building with the exception of the auditorium, which will be heated with the vapor system.

Work has been started by Mr. Cunningham and more help will be added as the building progresses. The contract was awarded by the Young Amusement Co. of Gary, Ind., the builders of the theater.

DANCE PROGRAM TO START AT 8 O'CLOCK

The program of folk and fancy dances to be given by pupils of Miss Margaret Clapsaddle, in the auditorium at the Central Junior High School, tonight will start at 8 o'clock, instead of 7:30 as announced yesterday, it was said by Miss Clapsaddle today. The program will be given for the parents and friends of the children.

Piano Demand Increasing

More upright pianos proportionately have been sold in the past year than in any year since 1915. Why? Because the piano is, first of all, the universal musical instrument for the home, and secondly, because the beautiful new uprights have made such a hit with public fancy.

The new small upright is a musical gem as well as an architectural beauty. The construction is based upon late scientific developments in tone creation. The volume and quality are amply sufficient for most home requirements.

Suitable especially for studios, bungalows, apartments and other homes where the size and appearance of the piano have much to do with exemplifying the good taste of the owner.

Tributes to Willis Voiced by Residents of Marion County, Regardless of Party

CITIZENS of Marion County, where Senator Frank B. Willis was widely acquainted as a consequence of his home being in an adjoining county and also because of his close association with students from here at Ohio Northern University, were unanimous today in expressions of sorrow over his death.

Without regard to political affiliations, they praise the senator for his high qualities as a man and his courage and integrity as a public official.

Tribute from Old Friend

Deep regret for the death of Senator Willis was expressed by John H. Clark, local attorney, this morning.

Mr. Clark, who was perhaps closer to Senator Willis than any other person in Marion, said: "The United States needs more statesmen like Senator Willis. He was clear, capable, and thoroughly honest. I have known him personally and intimately for 30 years, and he has always stood for the right whether it was popular or not."

An impressive example of the deeply religious character of Senator Willis, and one which portrayed his ability to grasp the eternal fitness of things, Mr. Clark said, occurred last December, when in company with Senator Willis, he was enroute to a meeting of the trustees of Ohio Northern University at Ada.

Mr. Clark said they were late and were speeding along at about 50 miles an hour when the tire on a front wheel suddenly blew out. By a miraculous effort, the car after running along the edge of the ditch for 50 feet, was brought back into the road. In response to a remark by Mr. Clark of the nearness of a tragedy, the senator replied with a grim smile. "Well, John, if we would have gone over, I believe God would have been with us."

"I first knew Senator Willis 30 years ago when he was an instructor at Ohio Northern University. I was a member of his class in civil government," Mr. Clark said. "In the years that followed I came to know him very well. He has visited my home frequently. I campaigned with him through Hardin County when he was a candidate for governor, speaking in every city in the county.

"During these years I became intimately acquainted with the senator, and sincerely believe that he was one of the most powerful factors in the enforcement of the prohibition laws, in the United States."

Because of a previous engagement to make an address in the eastern part of the county, Mr. Clark did not attend the homecoming meeting at Delaware last night.

An Untiring Worker

George B. Cristian, Sr., although differing in political faith from the late senator, this morning lauded him as a "Republican of the regular school who never wavered in his allegiance to his party."

Summing up in a few sentences his 20 years of acquaintanceship and friendship with the late senator, Mr. Christian characterized Mr. Willis as a "staunch friend, and an untiring worker for his country and fellow men."

Mr. Christian, according to his statement this morning, first knew Senator Willis as a professor at Ohio Northern University. "After Mr. Willis entered upon his political career it was my pleasure," Mr. Christian said, "to be instrumental in his election to the office of governor of Ohio."

In closing Mr. Christian recalled the address before the Republican convention of 1920 in Chicago in which Mr. Willis placed before the body the name of his friend, Warren G. Harding, for nomination as the party candidate for president of the United States.

Warner's Comment

"My acquaintance with Senator Willis dated back to my student days at Ohio Northern University," Fred W. Warner, chairman of the Republican Central Committee said this morning. "As a professor there he was one of the most respected and admired men connected with the university. He took a keen interest in the college life of the students and gave his untiring efforts to his class room work and student activities.

Fred E. Guthery, Marion attorney and a Democrat, said: "Frank B. Willis rose from lowly estate to a high place in the councils of the state and nation. He was a man of strong convictions, which he firmly maintained. He possessed those qualities of the good man—industry, integrity, patience and love and charity for his fellowmen—and he earned and held the high esteem of his fellow countrymen."

Former Schoolmate

Hoke Donithen, local attorney who attended college with Senator Willis in the early 90's, and who had been closely associated with him politically during the years elapsing since then, said that the senator's death means a great loss to state and nation. "Frank was notable for his absolute sincerity, honesty and loyalty," Mr. Donithen stated.

The Marion attorney's last conversation with Senator Willis was three weeks ago, when they talked over the telephone regarding the senator's presidential candidacy.

"My mind is filled with grateful memories of my friend, Frank B. Willis," B. J. Shelton, chairman of the Marion County Republican committee, said. "I knew the sterling integrity of his character. He was indeed a loyal-hearted man. It was certainly a shock to hear of his untimely death. He is survived by a host of admiring friends."

S. H. DeLong, cashier of the Marion Savings Bank and a member of the Marion County Democratic organization, said: "Senator Willis was to be admired as an earnest worker for what he believed in. On the whole, people of Ohio can be proud for his having been a native Buckeye."

Funeral Services For Late Senator Will Be Tuesday

his death then spread like wildfire through the crowd.

Senator Willis was ill Thursday night, Mrs. Willis said. He had been attended by three doctors yesterday after a restless night, but had said that he felt no ill effects of his ailment.

He had been determined not to disappoint the comrades of his young manhood, who had gathered to hear him speak. They were his closest friends.

Senator Willis was born at Lewis Center, O., Dec. 28, 1871 and had served his state and community in public affairs since he attained manhood.

Became Teacher

He took his bachelor's degree at Ohio Northern University at Ada, O., and later earned his master's degree at his alma mater. Some years later he was graduated in law fom Ohio Wesleyan University, here.

After his law degree had been attained, he became a teacher at Ohio Northern of economics and law. In 1906 when he was admitted to the bar, he began a general practice.

But six years previous to his admittance he was elected to the State House of Representatives, where he served two terms.

In 1911 he was elected to the United States Congress, where he served two terms, retiring in 1915, when he was elected governor of the state. After 1917, when his term as the state's chief executive expired, he retired from public life until 1921. In that year he was elected United States Senator, in which capacity he has served continuously since that time.

Always Staunch Republican

The senator had always been a staunch Republican, and was a supporter of the late President Harding, whose name he placed in nomination at the convention. It was he who succeeded Harding as senator.

The senator had often been urged to make a campaign for the Republican nomination, even as far back as 1915, when he was noted as the fighting governor from Ohio. However, he always demurred, not feeling the time ripe for his entrance into such a race.

In this campaign, however, he consented. He was opposed in Ohio by Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover.

A terrific battle was in progress when the senator met his tragic end.

Mr. Willis was married in 1894 to Miss Allie Dustin of Galena, O. There was one child, Helen, now a teacher at Ohio Northern University.

Senator Willis of Ohio, whose life came to an end in his native town of Delaware last night, began his political career during the presidential campaign of 1896.

Senator Willis became interested in politics at that time and stumped the state for William McKinley. In 1899 he stepped boldly into the game when he won the nomination of Republican candidate for representative from Hardin County.

Elected to Congress

In his two terms in the Ohio Legislature Senator Willis gained distinction through his connection with reform tax measures in Ohio.

In 1910 Willis was elected to Congress from the Eighth Ohio District, defeating Thomas C. Mahon by a margin of 1,500 votes. He was one of the three Ohio Republicans returned to their seats in the election of 1912.

Senator Willis' jump from obscurity to national fame in Congress came as a result of a speech he made in the House of Representatives on the Arizona-New Mexico statehood bill. His voice from that speech became known in the house.

Filled Harding's Term

He was elected governor of Ohio in 1914 and served two terms. On the same day in 1920 that Warren G. Harding was elected president of the United States Willis was elected United States Senator.

When Harding resigned early in January of 1921, Willis was appointed to fill his unexpired term in the senatorial position. He was reelected to the Senate in the November elections of 1926.

The deceased Senator made two nominating speeches in the Republican national conventions of 1916 and 1920. In his first speech he represented Theodore E. Buurton and Warren G. Harding in 1920.

lines and poles in many cases were strewn along the roadways. Motorists experienced difficulty in driving and many times were forced to drive into ditch in order to avoid broken poles.

Damage Extensive

Damage to power and phone service in the region north of Upper Sandusky is reported to be the most severe in 21 years.

Farther to the north and west Findlay and Fostoria were reported to be hardest hit by the storm. Norwalk and Sandusky were running a close second. Four houses were badly damaged at Norwalk while damage to wire equipment is estimate at $800,000 in northwestern Ohio.

Marion County, threatened yesterday by possible heavy damage from floods, was emerging this morning with scarcely a scar as a reminder of the storm.

No Overflow

Water, which yesterday noon was within two feet of the top of the Clark dike along the Scioto River west of LaRue, did not overflow, according to available reports from the office of the county surveyor this morning. Between Prospect and Newmans, where the water was expected to reach flood stage today, the Scioto River scarcely reached the edge of the bank before starting to recede slightly, it was stated.

A. J. Berry of the Marion branch of the Ohio Associated Telephone Co., reported this morning that there had been no damage to telephone lines in Marion County. The only difficulty experienced by the local branch was at Nevada, according to Mr. Berry. Nevada is north in Wyandot County.

"Sunday fair and warmer" is the glad tidings from the weather bureau. Fair weather and rising temperature were also predicted for today.

Yesterday the mercury slowly crept up to 38 degrees. The low was 25 degrees. A year ago the high was 56 and the low 38.

JAMES M. COX, JR., JAILED IN ACCIDENT

Son of Former Ohio Governor Arrested After Chase in New York

New York, March 31—Arrested after a chase in which a half dozen patrolmen fired a score of shots, James M. Cox, Jr., 24-year-old Yale student who says he is the son of the former governor of Ohio who ran against the late President Harding in 1920, was arraigned today in Yorkville Court and held in $1,000 bail. He was charged with simple assault and leaving the scene of an accident. An additional charge of driving while intoxicated was made.

The chase that ended in young Cox's capture extended from Fifth-av and 29th-st, where his machine had knocked down and slightly injured a passing laborer, to the entrance of the Hotel Biltmore on 44th-st near Vanderbilt-av, where Cox himself was slightly injured when he fell getting out of the car.

19 CONVERTED AT CHURCH REVIVAL

Week's Report Given for U. B. Meetings; Evangelist Assists Pastor

Nineteen conversions have been listed this week at First United Brethren Church, where a revival has been in progress since Tuesday. The conversions were made through the pastor, Rev. W. H. Howard, who is in charge of personal evangelism for the campaign.

Rev. Carl Vernon Roop of Findlay, the evangelist in charge, preached at the service last night on the subject, "The Changeless Christ," basing his message on Hebrews 13:8, "Jesus Christ the same, yesterday, today and forever."

"Everywhere we see change," Reverend Roop said in part, "change in travel, crops, trees, cities, governments and methods. Man is changing. Our homes are changing. Death knocks at our heart's door and that solemn change soon overtakes us all. But Christ's teachings are the same today as they were when He sounded them forth 2,000 years ago among the hills of Judea and beside the sea of Galilee. His attitude toward the children, the sick and the sinner is the same. Those eternal verities in the sermon on the Mount are just as imperative now as they were then when Jesus preached them to the multitude that assembled. He is the changeless Christ."

CLEVELAND RECTOR IS LENTEN SPEAKER

Rev. Kirk B. O'Farrell, rector of Emmanuel Church, Cleveland, and one of the outstanding Episcopal rectors of the state, was the speaker at the fairly well-attended Lenten service last night at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. The service brought to a close a series of special Friday night Lenten services.

SILVER-ST GROCERY SCENE OF BURGLARY

Merchandise Valued at $100 Taken from McDaniel Store

Gaining an entrance to the building by crawling through a small basement window, grocery store burglars stole groceries valued at $100 from the store operated by Frank McDaniel at 517 Silver-st, early this morning. The robbery was discovered by the proprietor when he opened the store this morning and found a rear door standing open.

Automobile tracks in the alley at the rear door, leads police to believe the groceries were hauled away in a truck. Footprints on sugar sacks left by one of the intruders when he climbed up to turn off a police light also indicate that at least one of the robbers was a large person.

Use Crowbar

After getting into the basement, the robbers tore off three locked doors by means of a crowbar which they had brought with them, before gaining an entrance to the store proper. That the robbery took place around 2 o'clock is the belief of the proprietor. A woman living in the neighborhood from whose room the police light in the store is visible, said when she awoke at 2 o'clock this morning, the light was out. It was burning, however, when the store was opened this morning, Mr. McDaniel said.

Included in the groceries taken, according to the report made to the police, were 15 pounds of coffee, 10 cases of canned goods, one ham, three bushels of potatoes, a quantity of sugar, also three boxes of candy, five cartons of cigarets and four flash lights.

COURT IS DIVIDED ON REMUS RELEASE

Judge Justice of Marion Votes Against Decision of Two Associate Judges

Announcement of action taken by the Court of Appeals at Lima, yesterday in granting George Remus, wife slayer and former millionaire bootlegger, his freedom, shows that Judge Charles L. Justice of this city did not concur in the decision.

The vote of the court was two for liberating Remus and one opposed. Judges Phil M. Crow and Kent W. Hughes decided in favor of Remus and Judge Justice dissented.

In his statement, Judge Justice declared that in his opinion Remus had "failed to establish by degree of proof required by law, his present sanity."

Sums Up His Views

"As I see this case," the Marion jurist said in the closing paragraph of his opinion, "it discloses a wife slayer who escaped the electric chair on the grounds that he was insane; who thereafter was adjudged insane by a court of competent jurisdiction and who comes before us with the presumption that he is now sane. He seeks his liberty at our hands. The burden is on him to prove his present sanity. Has he done so? I do not think so.

"Holding these views, I vote to dismiss the petition."

The state, represented by the attorney general's office, has taken steps to obtain a stay of execution of the court's order, it was announced today.

Almost Blind in One Eye—Now Reads Without Glasses—Neuritis Quickly Disappeared. Sykodoner the Reason—as Usual, Of Course.

Mrs. D. A. Moore, 300 Nye St., Marion, Ohio, suffered with a very painful neuritis, chills every night; and almost totally blind in her left eye. Bowels were so badly constipated that nothing would give satisfactory relief. It was not more than an hour after use of Sykodoner Health System, that bowels became normal, and have remained so ever since; chills ceased from that day, never to return. She can again do her own washing and ironing; and would not take anything for what the Sykodoner did for her. In fact, Mrs. Moore is now happiness personified.

In view of the fact, that the Sykodoner has created the greatest sensation of anything, in the relief of human ills, don't you think it your duty, at least, to investigate this unique discovery. You owe it to yourself, family and friends.

Now the most wonderful phenomena of anything you ever before saw, in all your life. You will see it with your own eyes; but, you will not be able to explain it. It is here, in Marion, now. No drugs, surgery, serum, or rubbing. On the other hand, it is the most delightful and nerve soothing treatment known to man.

The Sykodoner being a basic or systemic treatment, it regulates the entire body. Its amazing success is due to the fact, that it does not treat disease; but, it aims at toxemia, the basic cause of all chronic ailments. See the Sykodoner Man, today. EASTER BUILDING

The Easter season is the spring time of the year when the weather conditions are ideal for all kinds of construction work. If you are going to build this year you are planning to do it now. You cannot build without lumber. If you are in the market for good, sound lumber you should let us have your order.

"Prohibition is the best thing that ever struck the United States," says Sir Wilfred Grenfell. "They say that it is a failure in New York, but let me tell you this: since prohibition every society that used to care for neglected children has closed its doors for want of such children." Glorious news, even though we do have to go away from home to get it.

Staggering Cost of Government.

The cost of government in Ohio in 1926 was $422,000,000. Thirty-one per cent. of this staggering total went for schools, colleges and universities; twenty-four per cent. for highways; eleven per cent. for interest on local debts; seven per cent. for public utilities, and twenty-seven per cent. for "general purposes," including police and fire protection, health and sanitation, inspection service and some other matters.

Of the total expenditures, $49,000,000 were by the state, $135,000,000 by cities, $126,000,000 by school districts, $89,000,000 by counties, $14,000,000 by villages and $9,000,000 by townships. Exclusive of debt charges, state and local expenditures for education were $129,000,000, educational facilities being provided at public expense for one person to every five of the population, such expenditures exclusive of interest on debts and the cost of improvements averaging $72.50 for grade pupils and $142 for high school pupils.

The heaviest expense in the cost of state, county, township and municipal governments—school districts, in may be observed, are not included—was that for roads and streets, the total being $101,000,000, of which counties expended forty per cent.; cities, thirty-two per cent.; the state, eighteen per cent., and villages and townships, ten per cent.

Twenty years ago it would have been political suicide for any official, or set of officials, to have suggested such expenditures as these. A storm of protest would have been raised ten years ago over even the reported contemplation of such expenditures. But we have been traveling along rather rapidly during the last decade or two, and we look with seeming indifference upon expenditures today which would have evoked overwhelming opposition twenty years ago. We are yet under the influence of the spending mania which we acquired during and immediately following the World war, which was such an orgy of extravagance as the world never before had witnessed.

Probably the best test we can give the matter of expenditures may be had by asking whether we can afford them and whether we are getting value received for them.

Can the people of Ohio afford to pay out $422,000,000 annually for government?

Is our state government worth $49,000,000 annually?

Are our streets and roads worth $101,000,000 a year?

Are we getting value received for the $129,000,000, exclusive of debt charges, for educational purposes?

Are the cities of Ohio getting government worth $135,000,000?

If all these questions can be answered in the affirmative, then well and good, but if they can not be thus answered, then there is need for a curbing of such outlays, need for a pause in which to take a survey of the situation and a revision of the amounts to be expended in the various taxing divisions.

There is a limit to expenditure over which we can not go and escape bankruptcy. There's a limit under which we can not go and escape deterioration and decay. Both these extremes are to be avoided. There's the happy medium between the two. Are we occupying that position in our state, in our county and in our municipality? If we are, we should not complain of what we spend. If we are not close to this situation, it should be our business to strive to secure it. The business of a political division should be run upon the same business principles as the business of an individual. There is no hocus-pocus by which a political division can expend beyond its means without meeting with disaster.

Death of Frank B. Willis.

The entire land is stunned today in the knowledge of the death of Senator Frank B. Willis, during the course of a great rally held in his honor in Grey chapel by his fellow-citizens of Delaware, Friday evening.

The falling of the curtain upon the senator's worldly career was dramatic. The Republican Glee club, of Columbus, was singing "The End of a Perfect Day" as he lay dying in an office-room adjoining the rostrum of the chapel, and as it followed with "The Soldier Farewell," the spirit of the senator took its flight.

The senator had left the rostrum but a few minutes before, remarking that he felt ill, possibly the result of the fumes from the torches used in the parade preceding the rally, but what in reality he felt was the weight of the hand of the messenger of Death.

For several weeks the senator had been actively engaged in his campaign for the Republican nomination for the presidency, his hope being to enter the Kansas City convention with the support of his home state behind him. That hope is gone. He has been called to a higher field—to the life eternal.

During the campaign, short as it has been thus far, there have been some expressions of bitterness, not by opponents of the senator in the presidential preliminary, but rather by some of their adherents and by papers opposed to his candidacy. It will be interesting to note how free from flings, from bitterness, the utterances of these will be since he has gone. In the presence of death, the pettiness of politics disappears, and virtues are conceded to the dead which were denied to the living.

Frank B. Willis was a manly, upright Christian man in all ways worthy of the high honors bestowed on him by the people of Ohio, who twice elected him to the state legislature, twice to the lower house of congress, once to the governorship and twice to the senate, in all of which positions of faith and trust he served them faithfully and well. Such continual preferment does not come by chance. He possessed a keen mentality and was an orator of far more than passing note. At all times he was an unswerving champion of temperance. There have been many flings at federal law-makers who champion temperance and assist in enacting laws to enforce temperance, but do not practice temperance. No such fling was ever made at Frank B. Willis, for even the most pronounced wet did him the justice to admit his sincerity as the enemy of intemperance. Of all the foes of liquor in our federal legislation halls, it probably is not going too far to say that he was the most outstanding. His honesty of belief in, and his sincerity in advocating, temperance were never questioned.

What will be the effect of the death of Senator Willis upon the candidacies of the other distinguished members of his party who are aspirants for presidential honors is upon the knees of the gods. Where the strength which was behind him will go is at this time purely a matter of conjecture. This much only can be said today: the element of his party committed to the cause of temperance has lost its foremost champion, and the country as a whole has lost a law-maker whose honor and integrity were ever above question.

An exchange suggests that it might be well to encourage high hats and frock coats in Chicago; that what the campaign up there needs is more dignity. Can it be that this exchange feels that the bond between the politicians and the bootleggers up there is already sufficiently close as it is?

There's no occasion for Nicaragua to feel humiliated as a result of the fact that Uncle Sam is to watch her election. It looks as though he will have to pull off the same stunt in the Illinois crime belt.

A New York theatrical producer plans to open a house on Broadway in which a dollar is to be the top price for tickets. It's going to be something of a novelty to New Yorkers to be permitted to see stage offerings for no more than they're worth.

And now a woman in Flushing, New York, has held a perfect bridge hand—thirteen hearts. So many of these perfect bridge hands have been showing up lately, that we are beginning to wonder if somebody hasn't been monkeying with the decks.

Wall of Ignorance.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In an address the other day, President Hibben, of Princeton, said: "The youth of today is not enthusiastic about anything—it is bored."

That may be, but we need not worry over it. Youth is pretty sophisticated these days. There may be advantages in it.

It is natural for us of another generation to feel hurt or disturbed, certainly, over what is done now so differently than it was "when we were young." Somehow we feel it is all wrong, that the young folks should now be just as we were.

How can they be the same when the world is different? We had no electric lights to turn night into day. We had no automobiles to annihilate distance. We had no movies to give us familiarity with the wide world.

The telephone, the radio, the aeroplane, the illustrated daily newspaper—all these have conveyed knowledge to the young folks of today that we had to wait for till we passed middle life. They have access to books and information that were locked away from us.

In short, youth of today is sophisticated. No wonder youth is bored. With Alexander, youth has no more worlds to conquer.

What should we do about our young folks? What can we do? Do we need to do anything?

I have thought a lot about this since the beginning of the World war. As health commissioner of New York City during the period that revolutionized human thought, I was brought face to face with terrible facts about health and disease.

We learned things we had never dreamed of until we examined 10,000,000 young men in the draft boards. We came to know that thousands and tens of thousands of our youth are unfit physically. Then, in my own case, when I came to apply this knowledge to the millions under my care, it brought home an appreciation of the responsibilities which rest upon parents, physicians, ministers, teachers, all who come into intimate contact with youth.

If youth is bored, perhaps youth can be aroused by being given exact knowledge of the fact of life. It has felt the effects, but perhaps even its sophistication has not reached into the causes.

There are many things youth should know—important things, exact things. Most important of all are the facts of sex. I am not thinking of the effects of sex, but of the fundamental, underlying facts of sex.

As I view it, there is too much "thou shalt not" in our dealings with youth and not enough honest explanation of the reasons for things. Dogmatic assertion will get nowhere with modern youth. It must have the real truth.

How are we to teach the facts? I wish you would write me your views. I have mine, or think I have.

By this I mean that my heart fails me sometimes when I set out boldly to teach what I think youth should know. Yet I am confident youth should know.

What shall we do about it?

Vagrant Verse.

TO MARCH.

You mouth of cave-man humors,
Tempestuous wooer of your love, the earth,
Whom you would wake to love and life anew
With boisterous gayeties and swift, wild rages,
With calls and shouts of roystering laughter
And tricks of rain and sun and ill-timed snow;

You cave-man month, you genius mouth,
Too full of your own purposes,
Your mighty plans of birth and growth,
Your year-long aims and age-long goals
To heed your greening grass and swelling buds,
Your tulips abloom in rainbow silks,
Your skies of infinite tender blue brief-glimpsed
'Twixt bosomy white wind-driven clouds!

Yet are they here, the largess of your heart
That promises fulfillment to all springing things.
Oh, blessed cave-man month,
Adown your corridor of days we run
With sun-bright hopes and spirits high
To open the temple doors of life abundant!

Editorial Opinion.

THE YANKEE MOTOR CAR IN EUROPE.

The American automobile industry has Italy to thank for starting a movement designed to restrict importation of American-made motor cars by European countries. It is, however, by no means clear that Europe as a whole will "fall" for the idea. Some of the largest European manufacturers have already gone on record against it, and with reason.

At this time America supplies more than seventy-five per cent. of the motor cars in use in Europe—a fact which speaks convincingly for the general popularity of the American product. It indicates, too, that European manufacturers are still far from being in a position to satisfy their domestic demands. To be able to do that they must not only admire, they must apply, American methods of mass production. For such a purpose they need capital in amounts not easy to find lying around loose overseas. A solution might be found in the formation of an international automobile cartel similar to those already existing in steel production and other fields. But even so, with American cars held down to import quotas, with European production inadequate in volume and unsatisfactory in quality, the continent would probably be condemned to an unpleasant era of adjustment.

There are branches of industry in which the European nations may hope, by means of cartels, to meet their own needs and even to compete effectively with America in world markets. But automobile manufacturing is not yet among those branches, unless Europe decides to give up riding while her own producers make ready to replace the favorite, but excluded, vehicles.

The present supremacy of American motor cars in the English market has resulted from a hard struggle with handicaps and obstacles. Under the recognized code of trade sportsmanship the success is richly deserved. It is, moreover, the upshot of the working of economic factors against which a typical European cartel is not likely to prevail without injuring those in and outside such a combine. —Detroit Free Press.

THE OIL DISPUTE ENDED.

By signing the amended Mexican oil law regulations, President Calles closed a long and unpleasant controversy between the governments of the United States and Mexico. Both countries have reason to rejoice over the event.

The oil dispute between the two nations began shortly after the promulgation of the Mexican constitution in 1917, containing provisions which, in the view of Washington, could be given retroactive and confiscatory effect in their application to the property rights of American citizens in the southern republic.

Mr. Calles disclaimed all idea of trying to enforce the constitutional clauses in a retroactive or confiscatory sense. But, nevertheless, the regulatory law of 1925 did menace the property rights of Americans acquired prior to the coming into force of the new basic law of Mexico. It was confiscation to require Americans holding such established rights to surrender them for fifty-year confirmatory leases.

This was Washington's contention and the supreme court of Mexico last winter declared that the Calles regulatory law did in truth have confiscatory and retroactive tendencies in violation of the spirit of the 1917 constitution. President Calles accepted the verdict and took steps to amend the regulations.

The story of the dispute could scarcely have reached its happy climax as soon as it did without the presence, in Mexico of the new American ambassador, Dwight W. Morrow, who accomplished more in four months of personal negotiation with Mr. Calles than had been achieved by years of diplomatic correspondence. Under the amended regulatory law, the oil and land rights of Americans acquired before May 1, 1917, are deemed by the state department to be as safe as can be expected. With this assurance, American oil companies in Mexico may still refuse to conform to the new legal requirements, but they will do so in the knowledge that they can not count on further diplomatic backing by Washington.—Detroit Free Press.

Thoughts and Behavior.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"Behaviorism reveals 'mind' as only a product of a stimuli in one's environment. But if influences create 'mind' in action or life they should do so in inaction or death, since the entire thought process is supposedly dependent upon mere physical reactions to objects in nature. Yet, in the latter case, they fail, although all physical parts are still present, often unimpaired, but like a camera without a film, nothing is present to record impressions. Doesn't this demonstrate that 'mind' and life are identical, and that 'mind' is not entirely a result of impressions?—George H. Westerheke, West Sayville, New York."

It demonstrates that mind and life are coincident, but not that they are necessarily identical. The extreme "behaviorist" philosophers got into their position by approaching it from the side of the lower animals. They studied first the behavior of caterpillars, ants, bees, birds, dogs, horses, etc., and they became convinced that all that these creatures do can be explained by the influence of physical stimuli acting upon the living organisms, and not calling for the operation of something superphysical, ordinarily called mind. Then, carrying the experiments and the argument up to the level of human beings, they "were easily beguiled into explaining away mind altogether."

A rock in their path was the doctrine of consciousness, or the state of awareness to what is going on both within and around the personality. So they began to deny that there is any such thing as consciousness. In fancied imitation of Hannibal dissolving the obstruction rock on the Alps with vinegar, they poured a new form of skepticism upon the citadel of human beliefs, by affirming that "belief is only a habit and not a mental occurrence," or otherwise put, that it is "merely a characteristic of bodily behavior."

"States of mind," they demurred; "but there are no such things, or at least nothing of the kind that can be known. It is the use of words," they went on, "and the efficacy of words in producing conditional responses, that constitutes what you call thinking."

Of course they could not exempt their own thinking from that emasculating definition. Yet they regarded it as both scientific and philosophical just the same! Science and philosophy built on pseudo-thought!

Then came "psychoanalysis," getting down, as its votaries think, "below the level of the waking consciousness," and tending to concentrate attention upon brute feeling as the source of conduct.

The extent to which behaviorist theory has been carried may be illustrated by the application of the term "laryngeal behavior" to language. It is not your mind as you unlearnedly suppose that chooses your words as expressions of your thoughts, for you have neither mind nor thoughts, in the sense you suppose, but it is your larynx that does it through the speech habits that it has acquired by the influence of environing stimuli.

Truly, as some one has said, behaviorism may be considered as "a subtle recrudescence of materialism." It is certainly a curious phenomenon to see man, after having reached the highest mental development of all the milleniums of his existence—at least such we flatter ourselves is the situation—now devoting his trained faculties to efforts to prove that after all he is essentially nothing but a mechanism, responding to physical touches like a piano, or an automatom possessing no original power of his own and no initiative, so that his piled up philosophy and science are after all no more fruitful or generative than heaps of sand.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, March 31—The museum and flea circus on Forty-Second street is in the fourth year of its "run" and threatens to eclipse the record of the able show. After 11 o'clock it fills with crowds in evening dress from the theaters all about it. It is a "stunt"—like going to Reuben's for a sandwich.

The museum is no different from its predecessor of other days. Even the amusing twisted mirrors that dwarf or elongate the figure line the entrance halls. There are also lung testers and penny peep shows featuring "The Art of Posing" and "One O'Clock Baby."

The suave tuxe oed announcer with touches of silver at his temple might have stepped from an E. Phillips Oppenheim. The exhibition continues with only an occasional change in the line-up of human freaks. The latest entry is Jean Liberra, the man with two bodies.

He is an Italian and from his stomach protrudes what seems to be a shrunken body like those preserved in clinics in alcoholic jars. All but the claw-like hands are covered, and it is the announcer's contention that Jean started out to be twins.

He further announces that Jean, coming from a normal family, is otherwise normal, married and the father of three healthy children. At which point, the night I was there, a lady in an evening wrap uttered a slight half scream and slumped to the floor. Fainting is not unusual in the museum.

There are also the bearded lady, the armless man who autographs his pictures with his toes, the man who defies electricity, the performing seal and the half man and half girl. The admission is trifling, but if you fall for all the rackets it is expensive enough.

The chief attraction, of curse, is the flea circus with its tiny performers, under an enlarging glass, rolling balls, climbing ladders, engaging in chariot races and such. They are taken out of wool balls for the show and hop back into them after it is over.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Dr. James J. Walsh, noted New York physician, thinks laughter is the best exercise. It produces mechanical stimulation on virtually every organ in the chest and abdomen by mechanical movements of the diaphragm. But perhaps too much can be said for laughter. Natural laughter is a fine and happy expression. A forced laugh is sad. The most irritating people in the world are those who are always smiling. And Dr. Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Journal, calls our attention to the fact that although man may be the only animal that laughs, the same stimulation of the diaphragm comes from the mooing of a cow and the braying of a donkey.

Kenneth Young of Kenton Gets Official Rank as Ohio's Youngest Legion Head

KENTON, March 31—Kenneth "Pat" Young, elected commander of Kenton American Legion Post, No. 198, possesses the unique distinction of being the youngest Legion Commander in the state of Ohio.

And this fact is borne out by official statement from J. J. Naslavsky, Columbus, state Legion Adjutant.

Young, who has just attained his twenty-seventh year, is an overseas veteran of the World War, having enlisted with the United States forces at the age of 17, though he represented himself as 18.

Joining the medical corps, he shipped overseas with the University of Maryland outfit and later transferred to the hospital train corps, being engaged in transferring wounded veterans from evacuation hospitals on the St. Mihiel front to base hospitals. Before the 12 months overseas service expired he again transferred, being attached to hospital headquarters.

Service on Border

Prior to the World War, Young saw Mexican border service in 1916 as a member of Company I, Ohio National Guard.

In addition to his Legion duties, the young commander finds time to serve as Boy Scout commissioner for Hardin County, having five troops under his supervision. treasurer of local Venture, No. 781 of the "40 et 8," and first lieutenant of Company E, Kenton's unit of the Ohio National Guards. He also holds a commission in the federal reserve corps.

Young's chief employment is that of an employe of the "Colonel" Ellis Clothes Shop here.

"The Brat", Clever Three Act Comedy, Presented By Drama Workshop At Galion

Play Sponsored by Golden Link Council, Daughters of America; Angeline Yochem Plays Title Role; Season Closes in April

Galion, March 31—"The Brat," a clever three act comedy by Maud Fulton was presented by the Drama Workshop Players of the high school auditorium last night as their third offering of the season. Beautiful stage settings and costumes added much to the effect and the unusual ability of the cast members placed the play among the foremost of recent local productions. The affair was sponsored by the Golden Link council of the Daughters of America.

Paul E. Randall a member of the group, former graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University, directed the play, serving as assistant to Mrs. Loren Heck, regular director who has been given a leave of absence until the opening of next season. Angeline Yochem, well known for former character portrayals, played the title role and as "The Brat" won special commendation for exceptional acting. The remaining roles were varied in type and well played by Ethel Tracht, Annabelle Todhunter, Helen Spiggle, Geraldine Helby, Hazel Garverick, Marjorie Moderwell, Gleuhill, Arnold Meeker, Gerald Everly, Rolus Eckstein and J. George Weiner. Charles Cook, Floyd Myers and Billy McFarquhar served as stage managers and Robert Yochem, Virginia Postance Phipps, Franklin Crane and Harriet Waterman composed the management committee. Special music between the acts was presented by Theodore Schaefer who gave a group of organ numbers.

The dramatic season of the organization will close April 26-27 with the production of three one act plays upon which work has already begun. "Sauce for the Goslings," a comedy, "The Conflict," a drama and "Six Who Pass While the Lentils Boil," a fantasy, are the plays scheduled for the final program.

HARDIN COUNTY HAS 3 BRIDGE WASHOUTS

Damage from Heavy Rains of Week Estimated at $4,000

Kenton, March 31—Two bridges and a culvert washed out by the heavy rains, with a resultant damage of approximately $4,000, are now being repaired by County Surveyor F. M. Gebert.

The heaviest loss was sustained when the Antrim bridge on the Roundhead pike, west of here, was practically destroyed by the waters. Two motorists, Paul Pfeiffer and J. M. Sorgen, both of near Kenton, drove their machines into the washout before warning lights could be placed, it was said. While the cars were damaged the occupants escaped.

The second bridge damaged was that spanning Pawpaw Run on the Hastings-rd, ten miles east of Kenton. The loss was estimated at $750.

The culvert was on the Forsker road four miles west of Kenton.

Mrs. Lester Rank
Is Club Hostess

Mrs. Lester Rank was hostess to members of the Sunshine Stitchers' Club yesterday afternoon at her home, Thew-av. Lunch was served and the afternoon was spent in sewing. The next meeting will be with Mrs. J. J. Keggan at her home, 600 Windsor-st, in two weeks.

SURPRISE PROGRAM IS PLANNED FOR MEETING

Miss Lillian Miley, who will preside as leader, has arranged a special "surprise program" for the consecration service of members of the Christian Endeavor Society of First United Brethren Church at 6 o'clock Sunday night at the church. The subject for the meeting will be, "What It Costs to Follow Christ." Miss Wiley has obtained a special speaker and arranged for special music for the occasion.

HOUSEWARMING HELD AT SCHROTE RESIDENCE

Fifteen members of the Prospect St. M. E. Church Sunshine Class surprised Mr. and Mrs. Moses Schrote with a housewarming last night at their new home four miles west of Green Camp. Rev. Karl W. Patow talked and Mrs. Christie Schrote gave a reading, "High Society." The time was spent socially and lunch was served.

EAGLES PLAN SPECIAL TRIBUTE TO HARDING

Will Place Wreath on Tomb Following Annual Memorial Service Sunday

Following their annual memorial service to be held Sunday afternoon, members of Bucyrus Aerie, No. 357, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will place a wreath on the tomb of the late President Harding, who was a member of the lodge, it was announced today.

A wreath will also be laid on the grave of Charles Bausinger, past president of the lodge who died since last year's memorial service.

The services, to be held at the Eagles' hall on W. Center-st beginning at 2:30, Sunday afternoon, will be open to the public. The principal address will be given by M. O. Burns of Hamilton, past grand president of the national organization of Eagles.

The services are in honor of the memory of the 92 members of the lodge who have died since its organization. There were 13 deaths during the last year.

STATE OFFICERS SPEAK AT LODGE EVENT HERE

Many Visitors Attend Annual Past Councillors' Meeting of Jr. O. U. A. M.

With more than 150 lodgemen in attendance, including delegations from Bucyrus and Mansfield, members of Lone City Council, No. 206, Junior Order United American Mechanics, held their annual "past councillors night" meeting last night at Junior Order Hall, W. Center-st.

Dr. C. J. Nichols, oldest member of the lodge, held the honored office of councillor. All offices were filled for the meeting with past councillors, who performed initiatory rites for a class of two candidates.

State Officers Speak

Speakers for the occasion were Harry E. Dailey of Springfield state councillor, who gave the principal address, talking on the "Junior Order," J. G. A. Richter, Canton, state secretary for the past 35 years, W. A. Clark, Urbana, state organizer, and W. H. Naufzinger, Bucyrus, national representative.

Two applications for membership were received and routine business of the lodge transacted.

The following past councillors held offices: C. B. Shetterly, vice councillor, H. B. Prior, junior past councillor; E. C. Johnson recording secretary; N. J. Kesler, assistant recording secretary; I. Bausman, financial secretary, G. F. Griffith, treasurer; W. S. Burley, chaplain. H. B. Prior captain of the degree team, and Virgil Altenberger, captain of the guards.

CAPACITY CROWD SEES SCHOOL'S FINAL PLAY

All seats and standing room were taken at the final showing last night of the Central Junior High School freshman play, "Penrod." The first performance Wednesday afternoon was for school children, and the auditorium was well filled for the performance Thursday night. Miss Isabelle Stump was dramatic coach in charge of the play.

BY EDNA S. DUTTON

The nine day mystery of the times to me is "How in the blooming world do so many people have the endurance, fortitude, call it what you will" to join so many organizations. I mean organizations into whose alluring mysteries one is transported astride the noble billy goat. I joined one outht, and while I am not broadcasting, I don't mind admitting that a flock of wild zebras couldn't drag me into another. If one is not prone to worry they get along fine until time to start to the place of torment, when they are seized with a shivering ahin to palsy. His fellow victims are of no consolation or comfort to him for they are pale about the gills and have the expression of a fish that had been away from home for about two days. And one's tormentors. They flit about with a knowing twinkle in their optics and have more business than the income tax man at five minutes of 12 the night of March 15. Of course they pat you on the back and blithely assure you that it won't be long now. And the ordeal. The only consolation there is, is that every one else in the class is suffering just as much as you are. These are my sentiments now, but there's always the chance of changing one's mind, and it might be that when I sit in the seat of the has been's instead of the candidates, I'll feel differently and will probably get as good a laugh out of it as the next one.

Now that the time is at hand for delving into the deep recesses of musty boxes and chests and rattling the skeletons of days that were, take a little time and look through your old school books, that is if you think you are equal to it, and if you don't think the youngsters of today are spending their time every bit as profitably as you did yourself I'll miss my guess. How many times through the old physiology did you cancel your own name with "the man of the hour?" And how many just drippingly sweet lines such as "just a pair of blue eyes" did you pen? And how many pictures of the fathers of our country did you disfigure by appending Jesse James moustaches to the clean-shaven, putting pipes into mouths that never so much as tasted nicotine, while the man who made your geography would never recognize some of the pictures of the grotesque boats which sailed the peaceful oceans or the hideous critters perched in some of the trees.

* * *

If you are one of these energetic souls that "when they have a task to do, do it with their might," and carry this through even to the laundering of silks 'en things which the p. w. g. does by lamp light in the wee sma' hours, you're all wet. The thing to do now is to gently but surely lure the dirt out with soap beads. And how much more cultured it sounds to ask for a box of soap beads than to blurt out a request for a bar of soap. These powerful dirt busters are tiny beads of soap which have been blown through a fifty-foot super-heated tower, emerging like so many bubbles and drying as they fall. The beads are porus and hollow, and so thin-walled that they dissolve immediately in water, even if it is not hot. No, I have not as yet received a sample, but I'll be on the lookout.

SOCIETY MEETS

Lutheran Missionary Group Entertained at Ackerman Home

Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Case and Miss Elsie Ackerman were entertained as guests at the meeting of members of the Young People's Missionary Society, Emanuel Lutheran Church, last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Ackerman, Bellefontaine-av. 'The Understanding Heart'

A Story of the California Forests

BY PETER B. KYNE

(Copyright, 1926, Peter B. Kyne by arrangement with King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The Action So Far

Anthony Garland, a young ranger, is transferred to the San [illegible] National Forest Reserve. Chief Ranger Casey welcomes him and tells him to beware of the charms of Monica Dale, who acts as lookout on Bogus Peak. Garland is notified by telephone the next morning that Robert Lee Mason, an escaped convict, is believed with bloodhounds, to be headed for a friend of Mason's so that he does not phone her. Mason appears at Monica's gate in a state of collapse. She hides him and feeds him, and riding out cautiously shoots the two bloodhounds who are trailing him. She goes to the sheriff she killed them because she thought they were chasing deer. Garland approaches and talks freely to her, not knowing Mason is inside. He loses his heart to her, tells her of his training as a lawyer and his ambition to become Chief Forester, then goes on the radio and listens to a concert at a San Francisco hotel. He hears someone snoring inside and accuses Monica of sheltering Mason. After a turbulent scene, Garland assures her he will not betray her. She shows her gratitude and after he has gone directs Mason how to make his escape. The sheriff makes another call only to discover, while chatting with Monica, that Bob Mason has ridden away on his horse. He looks at the girl but she only laughs at him.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER 11

AS Monica had anticipated, Ranger Anthony Garland was well on his way to the Tantrum Meadows station before he commenced to recover from the mental and physical shock incident to his meeting with the mistress of Bogus Lookout.

Gradually his heart-beats resumed their normal cadence, and from a purely masculine consideration of the effect this mountain girl had had upon him, his mind, habituated to clear, untrammeled thinking, automatically swung to a consideration of the effect she had had upon the failure of the mission on which his chief had sent him.

"Gave us both a good trouncing and made us like it," he reflected. "Then she had the audacity to tell me how and why she had foiled us, and forced me, in some subtle way, to promise not to betray her! Good Lord, how weak the strongest of men is in the hands of an adroit and lovely woman—not that I am the strongest of men by a long shot, but I've never regarded myself as a weakling.

"It was duty to search her cabin when she invited me to. I could have done it then without a severe loss of dignity, but I sacrificed that advantage to gain another—to do what I'll bet a new saddle she obviously desired me to do—and that was to please her by declining the invitation.

"What if she was bluffing? What if that convict actually was concealed in her house at the very moment she urged me to search it? Was that magnificent rage of hers real or simulated? Certainly I have never heard an old, dog, with cattails in his nose or a growth in his throat, snore as clearly and distinctly as that Airedale did. I didn't believe her then, and I do not believe her now, and I noticed that when the old pup stretched himself out in the yard to continue his snooze she kept throwing bits of bark at him to keep him awake. I think she was afraid that if she permitted him to sleep he wouldn't snore!

"Another point I foolishly overlooked, although I wouldn't if she hadn't been so desolately lovely and intellectually fascinating. She admitted she had been expecting a stranger for 10 minutes! No wonder she had her stage set off under that sugar-pine in the yard as far from the house as possible.

"She gave me a reasonable excuse for not inviting me into the house, but nevertheless I do not think she really cares a fig for such social niceties. She demonstrated that she is amply able to protect herself—and I don't think I have ever impressed any woman as a bad man.

"She got that radio going to drown the sound of possible snoring—and she chattered continuously when the radio wasn't playing. Mason has had very little sleep and much physical exertion since his escape; he must be exhausted. He had to have rest—and she saw that he got it. He had to depend on her to get rid of the sheriff's posse for him—and evidently she succeeded! Getting rid of me was child's play to that girl, but getting rid of that convict isn't going to be.

"Shall I go back and search her house? Or would it not be more diplomatic to suggest to the sheriff that he or one of his posse do it? I hesitate to incur that girl's active dislike, although, bless her, she thinks like a man and probably would be sporty enough to like me for outgaming and outthinking her. At any rate, she'd respect me—perhaps. You never can tell what these mountian people will do in their resentment. No, I wouldn't care to place myself in such a poor light that I wouldn't be welcome again on Bogus. That girl is certainly the shadow of a rock in a weary land for young Tony Garland.

He turned his horse abruptly off the trail and climbed to the very crest of Bogus. As he had anticipated he found an armed and mounted man sitting his horse here where he could command, while daylight lasted, a view of the surrounding country.

"Where's the sheriff of Siskiyou County?" Garland demanded.

"Right here," the horseman replied, laconically.

"I'm Ranger Garland, of the Tantrum Meadows station. Have you searched the cabin of Monica Dale, the lookout down yonder on the western slope?"

The sheriff's eyes opened questioningly. "No, I didn't."

"Why not?" Garland demanded in the peremptory tone of one accustomed to giving orders and rejecting explanations.

"Well, now that you ask me, I've got to admit I'll be horsewhipped if I know," the sheriff replied frankly. "We were all at the lookout station—rode up behind the girl after she'd killed our dogs, and furnished a pretty sound reason for her act. We met her about a mile below the lookout station, and she led us up to it instead of trying to send us off in another direction on a wildgoose chase—which she might easily enough have done. At her house she gave us all a drink, and—and—well, Ranger, it never occurred to me to suspect her. I must have been hypnotized by the girl."

"I can readily understand the spell she weaves, since she wove it on me half an hour ago." And Garland related in detail his experiences at Monica Dale's cabin.

The sheriff was convinced instantly. "The devil take that girl," he declared disgustedly. "She's smarter than any woman has a right to be. She knew the value of a bluff, but she also realized that a half-hearted bluff might fail. I knew a man who worked that psychology with marked success. He was a gambler—always played poker, table stakes pat. He wasn't an extraordinary poker player, but he did possess extraordinary courage. With a mixed hand and the highest card the curse of Scotland, I've seen that fellow stand pat in a game with four millionaire mining men.

"He bet cautiously, playing 'em close to his vest, studying his hand, studying the faces of his opponents, sighing a little, giving every evidence of a wholesome desire to bet 'em as high as a hound's back but lacking the necessary courage. So he kept raising and back-raising on piking bets until somebody shoved in a stack.

"Everybody stayed. They had to. They figured it was the last bet and that he'd lie down. He didn't. He shoved every chip he had in front of him into the pot—some $4,000 worth—and he didn't have as much as a pair in his hand. The others immediately quit, and the bluffer reaped the reward of his courage. Ranger, you're right. That girl is brave enough to take a desperate chance. Why didn't you call her bluff, young man?"

"Sheriff, if I were as old and homely as you—if I were a married man with four children, as you are—I'd have done it. I had a feeling, when she invited me to search her house, that I was losing $50 by declining the invitation, but—well—"

"I can read you like a newspaper, Ranger," the sheriff replied, grinning widely. "You're passing the buck, boy. Well, I don't blame you. She's as sweet as a royal flush."

"Women have a lot of conceit regarding their power over a man," Anthony Garland continued wisely. "Their first and most powerful weapon is their sex attraction, and they've used it so early and so often they figure they can get away with murder. Monica Dale—"

"If I was as good-looking as you—and as young as you—and if I wasn't a married man with four children—all of 'em girls and the youngest 16—I'd probably agree with you that what I didn't know about women wasn't worth knowing," the sheriff interrupted. "As the situation stands with me, however, I'm free to state I don't take much stock in your pronouncements, Ranger. You ain't had the necessary experience. What was you about to say regarding this girl, Monica Dale?"

"She will conclude she has successfully deluded both of us and that we will spend the night guarding the base of Bogus to keep Mason from escaping off the hill. So she'll keep him there all night—rest him and feed him—and turn him loose on Bogus an hour or two before daylight to take his own chances with your posse. She knows she cannot afford to keep him longer. In fact, she realizes it must never be known that she harbored him at all."

The sheriff nodded his comprehension and agreement with the ranger's views.

"I wish I had about 20 more men," he complained.

"I can tell you where to get them." Now that he was recovered from and removed from the danger of Monica's influence, he was all eagerness for the chase. "Send your chief deputy over to the camp of the Hercules Hydraulic Mining Company on Dogwood Flats—about three miles from here. Mason killed their superintendent—that's why he's doing time. The management there will co-operate with you, and your deputy can swear the entire crew in as deputy sheriffs and commandeered their services. You'll need them all for a night guard, Sheriff, and most of them have weapons."

"Right you are, Ranger. Please ride along the hog's-back for about a mile and you'll find my chief deputy. He's a red-headed man on a roan horse. Tell him what to do and say that I ordered it done. Then you take up his guard until he comes back."

Without further parley Garland rode off up the hogs-back and the sheriff rode down it to Monica Dale's cabin, with the result already told.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

TOMORROW will be April Fool day.

If I knew where I could get some white wash I would fool my mother and bring in a pail full of it and strain it and she would set it up in pans to let the cream raise on it, only what she would do to me would probly be plenty.

It was clear and warm when I let Jubilee down out of the window and it was just like spring. Spring is the best time of the year because it is the time that violets and snakes and lilies and toads and tulips and mudturkles come out, and a fella begins to limber up his pitching arm and to hunt for his top and marbles and to borrow his fathers knife, maybe, to make him a kite.

When I had fed my face and went out to clean the stable most of the bunch had went, because they do not like to stick around whilst I clean the stable. And Younins and Maggie and Feeble went and sot on our back steps whilst I cleaned the stable, and Hopper sot on the feed box and talked to me. He thinks I am a pretty bright fello. He is smarter than most of the bunch. He says when we got to be men him and me is going to be pardners and we will get rich and have two automobiles and two flivvers, and the rest of the bunch will come around to us looking for jobs. If they do I will sure give them to them. Then when I had got done in the stable and went to go the girls said to wait, because my mother was making bread and had promised to break up a hot loaf for us and give us all the butter and preserves and milk we wanted to drink, so there was not any getting away till we got that. I wanted to go, but not very bad, so I waited. When the bread was finished we all et till I thought we'd pop, and then we went out to take a look at the pastures and see if there is any grass yet, but there isn't. Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Princess Confesses to Madge

AS the girl who had called herself Eleanor Lincoln entered her own room again, she turned to me with an almost pettish expression.

"How much darker it is in here than in Anna's room!" she exclaimed. "Oh! I see! It is that window shade! I almost never have it down. Will you raise it please?"

Before I had time either to obey or ignore the command, for such it undeniably was, the girl threw out impulsive hands to me.

"Please forgive me!" she said. "I am off guard today. You see things are so different in my country. But I really did not mean to be rude.

"It is perfectly all right," I told her, a bit perfunctorily for I could not help but see what she meant by things being "different in her country." She meant that in the minds of her family there was a great gulf between members of a royal dynasty and Americans of whatever class. And she undoubtedly had been used to giving commands to people who in her mind were far above me in station.

She flashed across the room with the evident intention of drawing the shade, but I spoke warningly before she had touched the cord.

"Don't touch that curtain until I have a chance to tell you something you ought to know!"

She whirled toward me in amazement.

"Why! What! Do you mean that—"

Her voice died away, her eyes stared into mine. I was sure that she guessed part at least of what I was going to tell her.

"While you were asleep, someone was perched in the branches of the big oak outside. I am sure that whoever it was, had field glasses and was looking into the room. I caught the reflection from them in an old conjunction with the mirror and the sunlight upon the wall. It probably was some mischievous boy, but I think it as well to keep the shade drawn for a while."

I purposely had introduced the suggestion of the intruder being a mischievous boy, for until she was ready to give me her confidence, I did not wish her to suspect that I knew anything concerning the men who were persecuting her. She grasped at it avidly.

"Yes, it must have been a boy," she said, "and I will keep that shade down the rest of the day at any rate. I—I—believe I will lie down again. I—I—am not so strong as I fancied."

That she had understood only too well the meaning of the hidden watcher in the big oak was as patent as was the terror which was gripping her. But when with my aid she was again in her bed, she waited for only a minute before taking up the story of her adventures again with an air of casualness, almost flippancy, which I guessed was camouflage born of a determination not to reveal how frightened she was.

"When we went to Anna's room," she began hesitatingly. "I was telling you of having my 'nose bobbed,' was I not?"

I echoed the little laugh which she gave at the odd slang term for an increasingly popular operation.

"You spoke of it," I returned carefully ignoring—as I saw she was determined to do—her reference to the "fortune" paid her for delivering a message, "but I think you were just about to go on board the steamer when you marked the chapter 'to be continued in our next.'"

"Nothing happened on the steamer," she returned quickly. "But I secretly had written to Anna and Henry telling them to be in New York when I reached there, and to find some way of communicating with me without anybody else of our party knowing it. You can't imagine how happy I was when during the very first week of our stay here, a maid at the hotel slipped me a note from Anna."

Meditations of a Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

LOVE is a relic of the Victorian Age. It is found chiefly in the movies, the imagination and the dictionary.

Like the buffalo and pre-war champagne, it still exists, here and there. But in the face of eugenics, companionate marriage, petting parties and the growing antagonism of the sexes, it may soon take its place beside the Dinosaurus in the public museum.

We speak of "falling in love" as though it were a pit, or the Grand Canyon; but love is the light on the mountain-top to which we must eternally climb.

Love is a glorified friendship, highly intensified, flavored with romance, spiced with passion and sprinkled with star-dust.

Love, in the romanticist, is expressed in soulful kisses and by his inability to do any work for days at a time.

Love, in a bachelor, is demonstrated by his willingness to tie himself to a woman for life, and thereby exchange the admiration and embraces of a lot of women for the criticism and coffee-kisses of just one.

Love, in a husband, is shown by his willingness to give his wife anything that will make her happy, from the heart of the salad to a Paris divorce.

Love, in a college sheik, is evinced by his ability to think of somebody besides himself for a whole hour at a time, or to shave off his pet mustache to gratify a girl's aesthetic ideals.

Love, in a philanderer, is demonstrated by his inability to think of any OTHER woman, while he happens to be kissing a particular one.

Love, in any man, is the essence of unselfishness—and the most selfish thing in the world.

It is the flash of light, by which one sees clearly that to give to another and sacrifice for another is after all the magic way to get the greatest happiness out of life.

Love is what inspired the caveman with a yearning to pull a woman around by the hair, and what makes the modern man let a woman pull him around by the nose.

Many things are mistaken for love, such as infatuation, Summer dalliance, moonsickness and petting. But these no more resemble real love, than a quick lunch resembles a banquet on Olympus.

Love, like an appendicitis operation, is something that can happen to you only ONCE in a life-time—and that's enough!—Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

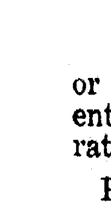
GET RID OF YOUR FAT

Thousands of others have gotten rid of theirs by my simple and efficient method of fat reduction without starvation diet or burdensome exercise, often at a very rapid rate and WITHOUT PAYMENT until reduction has taken place.



I am a licensed practicing physician and have made a careful study of the physiological requirements of the human body. This has enabled me to select such ingredients and in such proportion as in my opinion will produce not only a loss of weight without harm and an improvement in health, but with it an alleviation of all of the troublesome symptoms which frequently accompany and often are a direct result of overstoutness, such as shortness of breath on slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, etc., not to speak of the relief from the embarrassment of being too stout. Stout persons suffering from such diseases as Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Eczema, Asthma and high blood pressure are greatly relieved by a reduction of their superfluous fat.

My treatment will relieve that depressed, tired, sleepy feeling, giving you the renewed energy and vigor which come as a result of the loss of superfluous fat. If you are overstout do not postpone but sit down right now and send for my FREE TRIAL TREATMENT and my plan whereby I am to be PAID ONLY AFTER REDUCTION HAS TAKEN PLACE if you so desire.

Views of Senator Willis on Important Questions Are Given in Address He Prepared for Homecoming

Herewith is printed portions of the address that Senator Willis never gave. He planned to make it the feature of his homecoming. But death stepped in and the address was left undelivered. It follows in part:

"This friendly demonstration of neighborly good feeling and interest, so spontaneous and gratifying, would seem to indicate the impropriety of any political address upon this occasion.

Yet, I must recognize that this meeting, non-partisan in character, has its inception because of a political situation which I feel bound to discuss. I am not insensible to the fine honor you do me in this great homecoming meeting yet I should not like to think that the meeting is merely a tribute of kindly friendly interest in my poor self, but rather an indication of abiding confidence in the future of the republic and thoughtful interest in the proper solution of its problems.

"I am gratified not only that large numbers of members of my own political faith are here, but likewise that those belonging to other political organizations, are so largely represented. After all, no matter what the party label, we are all of us seeking the same lofty object, namely, the welfare and prosperity of our common country.

"Before any audience, it is embarrassing to a speaker to discuss his own record, or speak of his own humble achievements. This is particularly true in a homecoming such as this. What I am, whatever I may have achieved through the help of friends, is known to you all. Here in this county, I have lived most of my life. Here, on a Delaware County farm, my boyhood days were spent, as the life of most farm boys of Delaware County was spent in those days, forty years ago.

Born in Berlin Township

"Though I first saw the light of day in old Berlin Township, most of my youthful days were spent in Berkshire Township. There I labored at the side of my father and my brothers. There I began my struggle for such education as I have achieved, and in that neighborhood, I began to teach school.

"While a later fate took me outside the county, yet I always returned to this county as the home of my boyhood and the place where most of my relatives lived.

"Out yonder in the cemetery, sleeps the remains of my father and my mother, who lived for a while amongst you here in the city of Delaware.

"I speak of these personal things, only that you may know how fully I realize that you know me personally and are fully acquainted with my humble career. I would not if I could, and I could not if I would, make any extravagant statement as to what I have stood for or what I have tried to achieve. At all events, I may be sure that there will be here in Delaware County, fair appraisal of whatever merit or demerit I may possess. If merit is acclaimed by any, you will know whether such bestowal is justified; and likewise if criticism is indulged in, you will know best whether that criticism is justified. I am glad to submit my case to such a jury which already knows most of the facts.

Attitude on Dry Law

"I have not always been able to agree with all my friends about everything. It may fairly be granted, however, that whether you agree with me or not, you at least know what my stand is on public questions. There has never been, on my part, any effort to camouflage or evade, and there will not be in this campaign.

"For example, every person within the sound of my voice, knows what my attitude is on the question of the Eighteenth amendment. I speak of this only because our political leaders seem disposed to hide out on this question. In my opinion, the party that pursues a policy of equivocation and cowardice on this matter is doomed to defeat, and the leader who tries to satisfy both sides of the controversy, will find himself ultimately incurring the disfavor of both sides.

"There are people in this audience who do not agree with my view regarding the Eighteenth Amendment and its enforcement. Yet I do believe, that disagreeing with me as they do, they have a measure of respect for me in that I have definite convictions on the matter. In the discussion of this great question, may we not properly seek inspiration from the life and policies of Abraham Lincoln. At Springfield, in 1858, he said:

"We are far in the fifth year since the initiation of a policy with the avowed object and confident promise of putting an end to slavery agitation. Under the operation of that policy, not only has the agitation not ceased, it has continually augmented. A house divided against itself cannot stand. A Union cannot endure, half slave and half free."

Attitude Understood

"Lincoln made this statement to call attention to the fact that people had been undertaking to evade responsibility for the great slavery issue. He felt that the time had come when there must be clear stand, definite understanding and unfaltering devotion on the one side or on the other.

"My attitude is fairly well understood. I had humble part in drafting the present restrictive immigration law and I shall resist all efforts to weaken or destroy that law. Immigrants that come to us, assimilable and disposed to become Americans are always welcome. They have become a sturdy part of our citizenship. It should be understood, however, that America must not be Europeanized or Asiaticized. Those who come to us must become Americans in every sense, in order that American may remain American.

"The position of the Republican party on the question of tariff and foreign relations is well understood. There is abroad in the land an effort to break down our protective tariff system, largely in the interest of those who have investments abroad and who desire attention for the products of their foreign industries in the American markets and lower rates of duty, with ultimate free trade in view.

"It is perfectly natural, also, that the party about to nominate a candidate for the Presidency should make inquiries as to the political affiliations of those offering themselves as candidates. So far as my humble self is concerned, nothing need be said. While I have always respected the opinions of members of the opposite political party, I have treated them fairly and been fairly and generously treated by them, everybody has known that I was at all times a Republican. As best I could I have helped fight the battles of the party for the past thirty years. My political affiliation have never been in doubt.

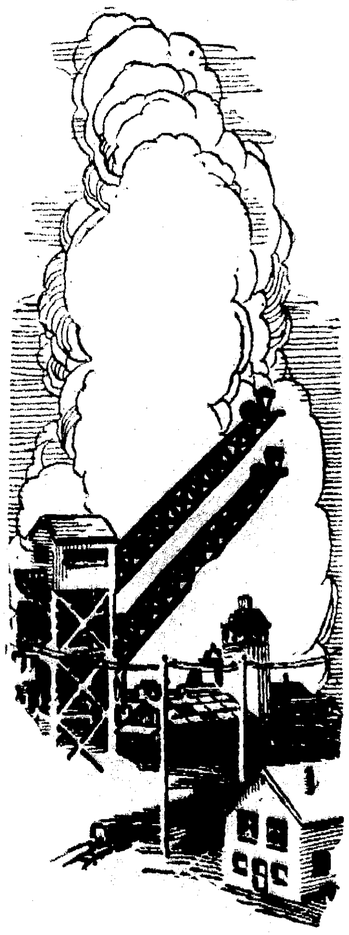
Let's Settle This Gas Rate Now And For Years!

Nothing was ever achieved by inaction. The City of Marion and your Gas Company have both paid a heavy penalty in lost development for delay in the gas rate case.

The Public Utilities Commission in the Kenton rate case authorized a charge of 88 cents for the first 400 cubic feet or less or at the rate of 22 cents per hundred cubic feet. Your Gas Company asks only $1.00 for the first 500 cubic feet or at the rate of 20 cents per hundred cubic feet.

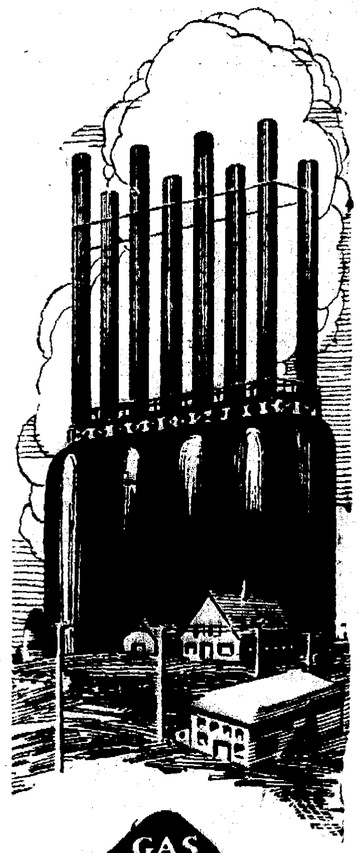
The Commission allowed in the Kenton gas rate case a block rate of 74 cents per thousand cubic feet for the next 2600 cubic feet; 70 cents per thousand for the next 7000 cubic feet and 53 cents for all over 10,000 cubic feet. Your Gas Company asks only 60 cents per thousand for all over 500 cubic feet.



Your Gas Company asks only what the necessities of its business require. It seeks only such return for its service as will justify it in continuing that service and improving it. And for nearly four years it has waited for you to decide.

If this can be called arbitrary,—surely the Gas Company has not been arbitrary. If this can be called unfair,—is it the Gas Company that is unfair?

Will you help get immediate action to settle this matter now and for years?



GAS IS worth more!

Marion Churches Plan for Palm Sunday Observance

SPECIAL MUSIC TO BE FEATURE

Pastors Announce Sermons on Texts Relating to Pre-Easter Event

Although no elaborate programs have been arranged for any of the local churches, Palm Sunday will be observed in Marion as usual, Sunday, with appropriate services.

There will be the blessing and distribution of the palms at St. Mary's Catholic Church, and fitting festival services morning and night at Emanuel's Lutheran Church. At the morning service Rev. J. W. Schillinger, pastor, will preach on the subject, "Do You Love the Lord Jesus?" a Palm Sunday festival sermon, and there will be a Palm Sunday anthem by the choir.

Program of Music

At night, "The Crucifixion," a sacred meditation on the passion of the Master by Stainer, will be presented by the choir under direction of E. C. Arn. Solo parts will be taken by Mrs. Boyd Mentz, Miss Elsie Ackerman, Mr. Carl William Ackerman, Jr., and George Hess.

Palm Sunday at First Reformed church will be featured by a confirmation service for nine candidates in the morning and a reunion of the five confirmation classes of Rev. Herbert F. Weckmueller, pastor, at night.

The Passion Play will be presented in pictures at the service Sunday night at Lee Street Presbyterian Church and in the morning Rev. James M. Fisher, pastor, will administer the rites of baptism and conduct a Palm Sunday communion service.

Announce Sermons

Pastors announcing Palm Sunday sermons are Rev. W. R. Shively, Rev. C. Radebaugh and Rev. George E. Groves.

Reverend Radebaugh will preach Sunday morning at Calvary Evangelical church on the subject, "The Message of Palm Sunday." Reverend Groves will preach Sunday morning at Central Christian Church on the subject, "The Memorial Entry" and Reverend Shively will preach at the same hour at the Church of the Brethren on the subject, "Triumphal Entry of Christ" and at night on the subject, "The Lesson of the Fig Tree."

PLAN HOMECOMING

"Homecoming Day" will be observed at the services at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Wesleyan Mission, N State-st. Rev. Frank Berry, pastor, will give a sermon and there will be special music. Older members of the church are especially urged to attend.

DAY OF PRAYER

Wednesday will be observed as a day of prayer at Calvary Evangelical church, it was announced today.

Does It Matter Much?

A SERMONETTE

BY DR. B. L. GEORGE

Pastor, Epworth M. E. Church.

THIS coming Lord's Day, we are to enter Holy Week. What an historic week! From any angle, no such week since the morning stars sang together and the sons of God shouted for joy.

A week with greater bearing on man's life, and destiny than all other weeks combined; indeed, for this very week, all other weeks and months were.

A week that saw God's plan for human salvation perfected. There is really no phase nor aspect of any sort of worthy life not included and arranged for in the final outcome of Holy Week.

When the dying Lord and Saviour cried: "It is finished." Much more, yea, infinitely and eternally more than that the awful horrors and extreme humiliation of Christ being slain by those He came to help most, having ended there on Calvary's hill top!

His pain was over, but ours is not and will not be over until our race and our world has learned his way of life and His method, God's method, of redemption; life through death; he that saveth his life shall lose it; but, he that loseth his life for My sake, which is for truth's sake, for love's sake, for man's sake, shall find it again; but find it fulfilled with a completion somewhat similar though far below His, of course, and find His joy and His abiding peace. "My peace give I unto you," yes, thank God, but not without somewhat suggesting the identical manner by which His striking peace, was won.

But I must not tarry at any interpretation of the historic events and facts clustering about Calvary and Joseph's tomb. I just cared to say that this week called Holy Week is worthy of any man or woman's meditation and consideration. It is a time for quiet and hushed spirit when any mortal man is entering the vale of death and we should walk lightly; but here in and around old Jerusalem is far more than an ordinary death; Shall you and I then, not reverently pause to inquire what this is all about and what in the thought of Almighty God, the meaning and intent may be for the race to which we belong? We surely, at any rate, will be reverent in the place of such unprecedented anguish and pain. I am only suggesting that if there be refinement, tenderness, potential sympathy and love within us, Holy week with its transfigured events will surely discover and uncover it and fan it to white heat as we stand in such sacred place and reverently ponder its eternal meaning; a meaning not spent until, the sons of men willingly bare their heads before Him, and own His Lordship in our hearts and minds and then, quietly as becometh the time, yield our all and our best to Him with full abandon. God help us so greatly the beneficiaries of this all which occurred lo, near 2,000 years ago, God help us, I repeat, to appreciate it as becometh people of intelligence for the animal world, brute creation will not discern what went on there, when earth trembled in earthquake and God covered nature's face with darkness at the Scene!

Pulpit Career Begun by Dr. Davis When Boy of 16

Pastor of Trinity Baptist Church Licensed To Preach at Early Age

WITH a record of 27 years as a minister, Dr. U. S. Davis, who for the last three years has held the pastorate of Trinity Baptist Church, is one of Marion's outstanding clergymen.

Dr. Davis is also known to Baptists throughout the state through numerous years of work in the interests of the Baptist Young People's Union. For three years he held the presidency of the Ohio State B. Y. P. U. and later, while holding a Bloomington, Ill., pastorate was for two years president of the Illinois State B. Y. P. U. He later served as a member of the national board of directors of the B. Y. P. U., during his pastorate at Bloomington.

Boyhood Ambition

"I first began to want to be a minister as a boy," Dr. U. S. Davis said, "and entered school with that thought in mind."

Upon completion of a lengthy college course and with several theological degrees to his credit, Dr. Davis began his ministry as pastor of the Linden Avenue Baptist Church in Dayton, where he remained for six years. He has since held five other pastorates. Licensed to preach as a boy of 16 years, Dr. Davis was ordained into the ministry at Bellevue, Mich., where he served as pastor during his student days at the University of Chicago. During his 27 years as a minister, Dr Davis has performed more than 800 marriages, and nearly 1,000 baptisms. He has also officiated at nearly 1,000 funerals.

Since coming to Marion, in addition to his pastoral duties, Dr. Davis has held the presidency of the Marion County Ministerial Association, for which body he nows holds the chairmanship of the program committee. He has also been active in the Marion Baptist Association, and in the Daily Vacation Bible School work and an interested worker for the Marion County Chautauqua. Fraternally Dr. Davis is a member of all the Masonic bodies with exception of the Knight Templar and is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, Denison chapter, Granville.

Two Visits to Europe

Dr. Davis is exceedingly fond of travel and has spent two summers in Europe, the summers of 1905 and 1910. At the present time he spends his vacations at the home of Mrs. Davis' relatives at Cape Cod, Mass., where he engages in his favorite sport—deep sea fishing.

Dr. Davis was born in Pittsburgh, but located with his family in Youngstown, O., as a boy. His father, L. E. Davis, now retired, was for 45 years with the G. M. McKelvey Dry Goods Co. of Youngstown, later serving as director of the safety department of that city. His mother is dead.

After completing a course in the Youngstown Public Schools, Dr. Davis went to Granville, where he graduated from Dean Academy and later from Denison University there, with an A. B. degree. Three years later he completed a post-graduate course at Denison with an A.M. degree. In 1896 he graduated from the University of Chicago with a B.D. degree, took a year of post graduate work at the Newton Theological Institute, completing his course in the following year and receiving a second B.D. degree. He received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Shurtliff College, Upper Alton, Ill., where he has lectured a number of times, in 1910.

College Activities

During his college days, Dr. Davis was very active in campus activities. At Denison he received five oratorical awards and served as a member of the editorial staff of the school paper.

Associated with him in his work here is his wife, Mrs. Florence Armington Wright Davis, whose former home was at Marlboro, Mass., and to whom Dr. Davis was married in 1898. Mrs. Davis is president of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Marion Baptist Association, vice president of the Woman's Society of Trinity Church and teacher of the Young Women's class.

Included in the numerous places Dr. Davis has made himself known as a capable preacher, conscientious church worker and energetic citizen, are Bloomington, Ill., where he served as pastor of First Baptist Church; Akron, where he was called in 1912 to take the pastorate of First Baptist Church; East Cleveland Baptist Church, Cleveland, and Ninth Street Baptist Church in Cincinnati, where he assisted as pastor during the World War; South Bend, Ind., where for seven years he was pastor of First Baptist Church, and finally Trinity, here, to which he came from South Bend March 15, 1925.

His home church, of which his father was for a number of years a deacon, is the First Baptist Church, Youngstown.

Good Friday Union Service Is to Climax Observance of Holy Week in Marion

Churches To Unite in Final Programs; Special Services Planned for Other Days by Various Congregations of City

As a climax to the Holy Week services being planned for local churches, will be the Union Good Friday service, between the hours of 12 and 3 p. m. Friday at First Presbyterian Church. The service, in which all local churches have been invited to participate, is being arranged under auspices of the Marion County Ministerial Association.

The service will be featured by three addresses, by Rev. E. Radebaugh, pastor of Calvary Evangelical Church who will talk on "The Miraculous Earthquake," Rev. Lester J. Houghtaling, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, who will speak on "The Rending of the Veil," and Rev. John A. Carriker, pastor of Forest Lawn Presbyterian Church, who will talk on "The Miraculous Darkness."

Rev. James M. Fisher, pastor of Lee Street Presbyterian Church, will conduct a communion service, assisted by the other pastors. Rev. J. E. Campbell will lead a song service and prayers will be offered by Rev. George Whitlock and Rev. W. H. Howard. Rev. G. E. Waddle will give the scripture reading.

Program of Music

There will be vocal solo numbers by D. L. Moody, Columbus, assisting with a revival at Trinity Baptist Church, and by Reverend Campbell. Mrs. Harry T. Williams, organist of the First Church, will play the organ accompaniments and will be heard in three special organ numbers as prelude, offertory and postlude.

Rev. George E. Groves, pastor of Central Christian Church and president of the Marion County Ministerial Association, will preside at the service, the general theme of which will be "The Miracles of Calvary."

There will also be a Good Friday service at the same hour at the Episcopal Church, to

Paul Due, rector of St. James Parish, Bucyrus, and a Good Friday service for preparation for an Easter communion, at First Reformed Church at 7:30 p. m. Rev. Herbert F. Weckmueller, pastor, will preach on the subject, "The Eclipse on God's Face" at that time.

Other Services

Other Holy Week services at St. Paul's Church will include Litany and Ante-Communion in the chapel at 10 a. m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Holy Week at Emanuel's Lutheran Church will be observed with four special services, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights, at 7:30 o'clock. On Tuesday night, Rev. J. W. Schillinger will preach on the subject, "Loved to the End," Wednesday on the subject, "It Is Finished," Thursday on the subject, "Blood and Water from His Side," a communion service, and Good Friday on the subject, "In a Garden a New Sepulchre." There will be special music by the choir at all services.

There will be special services at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights at Welsh M. E. Church at which time the pastor, Rev. George Whitlock will give pre- Easter messages.

MORTGAGES REACH YEAR'S HIGH MARK

Loans Made in County This Week Register Total of $141,778

While the number of mortgage transactions in Marion County this week increased only 10 over last week the total amount of money involved is nearly twice last week's figure. Forty-five mortgage transactions were made in the county this week and the total amount involved was $141,778.

Last week's mortgage transactions numbered 35 and the amount of money involved was $73,907. The total for this week is the largest recorded in more than a year.

Real estate transfers increased two this week over last. Twenty-nine deeds were recorded this week and 27 last.

Loan Company Totals

Of the 45 mortgages issued this week, 32 were issued to local building and loan associations. The loan company mortgages amounted to $102,200. Their mortgages last week totaled $47,135.

This week's total of mortgages was boosted by one loan of $80,000 and another for $20,000. The former was issued by a building and loan association as security for a loan on a local church. The other was given the Union Title & Trust Co., of Cleveland, and involved local property. The largest loan on farm land was one of $1,400 on 55 acres in Montgomery Township and was given as security to the Union Central Life Insurance Co.

MARION MAN HEADS DEBATE CHAMPIONS

Butler College Team Undefeated Under Coaching of Prof. Claude Sifritt

Prof. Claude Sifritt, son of the late Jos. W. Sifritt, Superior-st, and head of the public speaking department at Butler College, Indianapolis, has successfully coached the Butler debate squad to a perfect record for the season, officias of the college announced.

The team has had 10 victories and no defeats this year, the first time in many years that such a record has been established.

Mr. Sifritt is a graduate of Marion High School and Ohio Wesleyan University.

PRODUCE MARKET IS STEADY DURING WEEK

Old Potatoes Hold High Price Level Pending New Stock's Arrival

Both vegetable and fruit markets are remarkably free of any unusual features this week, either from the standpoint of prices or the appearance of new varieties. Prices showed but little change throughout the week. New potatoes, selling at three pounds for 25 cents the early part of the week, showed a decline Friday when they were quoted at four pounds for 25 cents.

Old potatoes continue high with no prospects for an immediate drop, dealers say. Two features which they say will determine largely when the drop will take place, will be the arrival on the market of greater quantities of new potatoes and of the quantity that will be dumped on the market by growers when they have determined how many they will need for planting and for their own consumption.

Dealers Holding Supply

Growers are now holding a great quantity of tubers, the dealers say, which when thrown on the market will send prices tumbling.

Strawberries were decidedly scarce on the markets this week. A few that were being carried by dealers last Saturday supplied the market the early part of the week, while they were entirely absent for the last half of the week, although some were being carried by dealers today.

Large supplies of apples were on the market all week and dealers reported a large demand at from $2.00 to $3.50 a bushel.

WALDO RESIDENTS CALL ON GIRL WHO IS INJURED

Waldo, March 31—Mr. and Mrs. John Gompf, Mrs. P. J. Ward, Mrs. John Ward and children John Jr. and James Wednesday night were in Columbus when they visited Miss Ella Mae, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bland formerly of this place but now of Harrisburg-rd near Columbus. Miss Ward is suffering from severe body bruises sustained Sunday night when struck by machine after she had alighted from a car upon her return from church and attempted to cross the road in front of her home.

MARTEL FAMILY ATTENDS CELEBRATION AT HEPBURN

Martel, March 31—Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Dille, parents of Mrs. O. E. Partridge of Martel, celebrated their fifty-third wedding anniversary at their home near Hepburn, Saturday. It was also the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Dille. Those present were two daughters and their families, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Partridge of Martel; Rev. and Mrs. Robert Kennedy and daughter Roberta of Ada, and one son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Dille of Marion.

STORE SERVES MANY PATRONS

Success Founded on High-Grade Products, Efficient Service

Marion is fortunate in many ways for the outstanding things in its make-up. Among these exceptional or unusual features is the Marion Paint Company, established some four years ago by Thomas F. Coulter and now managed by Clyde Coulter, his son.

This store is unique in many ways, but especially in the fact that it is of the largest and best exclusive paint stores in the state. It is seldom that a retail store handles paint supplies exclusively, most stores carrying paints branch out in other lines or only carry paints as sidelines. But here specialization in one line has been very successful in all respects.

Almost from the very start the Marion Paint Co. was a success, and its products were demanded by home and property owners all over the country. Last year nearly 1,000 homes in Marion used paints and varnishes sold by the Marion Paint Co.

New Product

The Marion Paint Co. has recently offered to the public a new variety of paint called "Lac-Paint" which is exceptional for its use in finishing walls, furniture and woodwork.

Lac-Paint gives a beautiful semi-gloss finish, furnished in 12 shades, also in black and white. It is suitable for interior work such as kitchen walls and ceilings, bathrooms, furniture, baby carriages, bassinets, picture frames, lamp shades, toys, kitchen cabinets, radiators, walls, ceilings and furniture of office buildings. It works and flows freely under the brush and yet dries in five to six hours.

The Marion Paint Co. carries exclusively Dean & Barry's paints and Pratt & Lambert's varnishes. These products are nationally renowned for their high quality as well as their reasonable cost. It is claimed that more Dean & Barry's paints were sold in Ohio last year than any other variety.

Dean & Barry make an especially fine brand of house paint which is probably one of the reasons why the Marion Paint Co., has enjoyed such a rapid and successful growth in Marion.

D. & B. house paints are not a new and untried experiment, but have given perfect satisfaction for more than a quarter of a century, thus proving themselves worthy of the name, high grade.

They are made from strictly pure lead, pure linseed oil, pure tinting colors and just enough zinc oxide and inerts to make the paint tough and durable and to keep the Lead from chalking.

The success of D. & B. high grade paint lies in its being ground and reground in great stone mills and then thoroughly mixed by powerful machinery, thus assuring fineness and uniformity of color that cannot be obtained through hand-mixing. The extreme fineness of this grinding assures that more surface will be covered per gallon.

The real cost of painting depends not upon how much paint costs per gallon, but how long that paint wears after it is applied.

As it costs as much to apply cheap paint as it does paint of proven quality, it is real economy to use the best paint obtainable.

If you are in need of good paints in any quantity you will find it a great satisfaction to trade with the Marion Paint Company.

Martel, Wildcats Win Marion County Cage Tournament

Dope Bucket Is Upset As Favorites Are Eliminated In Final Round of Meet

Losing Teams Hold Lead Until Last Half Rally Changes Result of Contests; Markert and Lewis, Waldo Are Defeated

BY KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor

Surprises and upsets marked the close of the Marion County Amateur basketball tournament at the Y. M. C. A. when Martel Lion Tamers won the Class A trophy and Marion Wildcats the Class B event.

The finish of the winning teams will go down in record as one of the greatest and outstanding in the history of the local tournament. Both winners trailed at the end of the half by large scores but through fast playing and accurate basket shooting in the latter part of the game managed to win.

Martel defeated Markert and Lewis, 38 to 31, and the Wildcats nosed out Waldo, 27 to 26. Winners were presented with trophies.

Waldo Game Good

Perhaps the most interesting game of the tournament was the Class B battle between Waldo High School and the Wildcats. The score was exceptionally close throughout with the result being in doubt until the final whistle blew.

Both teams managed to score eight points in the first quarter and in the second period Waldo forged ahead to obtain a 17 to 12 lead. The losers increased their lead in the third period to 21 to 14.

It was a hard battle in the last quarter but through fast scoring on the part of Walker, the Marion team won. Walker lead the scoring for the Wildcats while Bender scored 10 points for Waldo.

Martel Win Is Surprise

The biggest surprise of the tournament was the defeat of Markert and Lewis by the Martel Lion Tamers. Although Martel won last year's tourney, they were only given an outside chance to defeat Markert and Lewis in spite of the record established in previous games of the meet.

Markert and Lewis opened the game by holding a 7 to 4 lead at the end of the first quarter. This was increased to 21 to 11 as the half ended.

Breaking down the Markert and Lewis defense in the third quarter, the Lion Tamers opened a fast scoring offense that, before the close of the period, gave them a 33 to 27 lead. Long shots kept Martel safely in the lead in the final period.

The scoring of Lyon, Kennedy and H. M. Reed featured the play of the Martel team. Lyon accounted for 11 points from five baskets and one foul while Reed and Kennedy each scored 10 points.

McAninch and Gillis each gathered eight points for the losers. Gilmore scored seven markers.

INDIANAPOLIS SPEED DUEL DATE SETTLED

Fastest Stock Cars To Compete April 16 in 24-Hour Grind

Indianapolis, Ind., March 31—An international 24-hour automobile speed duel will be staged on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on April 16 when America's fastest stock car will compete with Europe's speediest creation on wheels, for a $25,000 stake.

A Stutz Black Hawk automobile piloted by Gil Anderson who recently established an American speed record of 106.52 miles per hour in such a car on the Daytona Beach in Florida, will race with a Hispano-Suiza car driven according to advance reports, by Charles T. Weymann, famous designer of automobile bodies.

Both Anderson and Weymann will have relief drivers.

The forthcoming race grew out of an argument between Weymann and F. Mosovics, president of the Stutz Motor Car Company, at the Paris, France, automobile salon over the relative merits of American and European cars.

Both Weymann and Moskovics have posted $5,000 forfeits in case of non-appearance.

Public interest in the approaching speed duel between the fastest American and European cars has been raised to a high pitch here. A crowd of 30,000 to 50,000 motorist enthusiasts is expected to witness the race.

Baseball Notes Gathered Here And There

DAZZY VANCE didn't have the nobbiest pitching record in 1927. But he struck out the most men. Therefore, the Dodgers, are paying him $20,000 for 1928—the highest wage ever tossed at a pitcher.

Babe Ruth wasn't the high percentage clouter of 1927 but he made the most homers. So he gets $70,000. And Lou Gehrig who was runner up to Ruth in four base blows gets $25,000.

All of which proves that if you want to get big money as a pitcher or a batter you should specialize in strike outs and homers and never mind about the rest of the endeavours.

IT'S 10 years since Frank O'Doul debutted in the majors—as a member of the Yankees. He was a pitcher then—and quite a clouter in his odd moments.

But O'Doul couldn't pitch well enough to get himself a regular job, nor was his hitting of such lusty nature that the Yanks figured he was worth perpetuating on the roster.

So they showed him back to the minors.

And now O'Doul is back in big time and in New York, too—but this time he's a Giant. And he's doing outfield stuff. His pitching years are behind him.

HAD you noticied that only four men now remain in Giant uniform who were with the pennant winning outfit of 1924?

Only three full seasons have gone since then—yet 21 of the 25 eligibles of that year have been blasted off the Giant greensward.

Ross Youngs and Hughie Jennings are dead. Frisch, Kelly, Nehf, Snyder, Southworth, Groh, Watson, Dean, Jonnard, Wilson, Bentley, Gowdy, McQuillan, Mcusel, Maun and the others have drifted either to other clubs in the majors or are buried in the minors.

Terry, Jackson, Lindstrom and Barnes alone remain.

THE dopesters have it figured out that the Athletes are going to cause the Yankees plenty of trouble in 1928. Which merely is history doing a repeat.

All the wise folks and their relatives decided the Athletes would give the Yankees a terrific fight all the way in 1927.

And then the Yankees made a runaway race of it and the Athletes might have been in another league so far as menacing the Yanks was concerned.

It's difficult to reckon that the Yanks are any weaker than they were last Summer—or the Athletes any stronger. So write your own ticket.

In the National, the "edge" is handed to the Pirates. There is logic in that. A great team, young and growing better with the seasoning of the years. Plenty of strength and no definite weakness.

Beat the Pirates and take the flag.

ABOZO must dip very deep into the pickle vats of history to dig up a case remotely approaching that of Jack Quinn, the weather-beaten right hander who just now is tuning up for his 25 years on the mound.

There are instances of where men have flung horsehides in one circuit or another for a quarter of a century, but it would seem that Quinn is perhaps the only one that went into his 25th season wearing a BIG LEAGUE uniform.

Quinn's career has been strange—and hectic. Anywhere along the line from 1903 until last year plenty of men would have wagered terrific odds that Quinn wouldn't be flinging 'em under the "Big Top" in 1928.

Yet here he is—as a Mackman—and those who have seen him in his springtime endeavor insist he's still good for a few more summers in the majors.

Up and down—in and out—backward and forward—slipping and coming back — improving, rather than deteriorating with age; from the minors to the majors, back to the minors, then to the "outlaws," once more to the majors—and then back in the majors again.

Quite a career, this career of Jack Quinn's, who started baseballing at 18 and is still up and at 'em at the age of 43; a man who is turning back stars of the diamond now who were unborn when he first heard the "ol' apple."

JOHNSON SICK

"Big Train" of Pitching Mound Taken to Emergency Hospital

WASHINGTON, March 31—Walter Johnson, the "big train" of the pitching mound for a score of years, is "a very sick man."

The doctors claim that a few weeks rest and treatment will bring him around to normal health, but those who saw the big pitcher taken from a train here in a wheel chair, and removed to emergency hospital, had their doubts today. The "big smoke" is sick—there is no doubt of that.

The doctors say he is suffering from the after-effects of the flu. The attack which he experienced in Florida this winter, they say, was particularly severe, and the after effects dragged down his general condition to the point where there is real reason for concern.

BRITISH GOLFERS TO INVADE U. S. DURING APPROACHING SEASON

J. C. S. Maughan, Head of University Society, Will Play Against Harvard, Yale

London, March 31—Reciprocating the visits paid for some years past by Americans in search of British golfing honors, British golfers are to invade the United States this summer.

The most important of the many invasions will be that of J. C. S. Maughan, captain of the Cambridge University Golfing Society during 1927 and the top man of this year's University team, who at the end of June is taking out a side to play against Harvard and Yale and several other matches against representative American teams.

Maughan has not yet got his side together, but it is expected he will be able to take out a very strong team, and the match should be of exceptional interest to American golfers.

In August the British Walker Cup Team, yet to be chosen, will sail for New York.

In view of the fact that the American Amateur Championship falls on September 10, many of the British Walker Cup team are expected to stay over and compete.

In addition to those enumerated above, R. R. Burton, a well-known old University player, will make a tour of America and Canada accompanied by his father, another well-known player. Burton has entered for both the American Open and Amateur Championships.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At New York: Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., light heavyweight outpointed Joe Sekyra, Dayton, Ohio (10).

At Toronto—Jackie Johnston, Toronto bantamweight, won decision over Frankie Genaro, recognized as flyweight champion by National Boxing Association (10). Genaro's title not at stake.

At Detroit—Kid Francis, New York bantam, outpointed Pete Firpo, Detroit, (6).

Price On Yanks Shortened In Wall Street; Pittsburgh Favored To Win National

Odds Give Idea on How Teams Will Finish Races in Major Leagues; Cincinnati Reds Held at 5 to 1 in Pre-Season Bets Placed to Date

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, March 31—The New York Yankees may be playing Class A baseball in the south but Wall Street is the odds made public some months ago, they were quoted at 7 to 10 to repeat in the American League. Today, their price has been shortened to 3 to 5 and just what that makes the Buffalo Bisons is something for your multigraph to mull over. The Bisons won only two games from the Yanks because they played only two games with the Yanks.

However, the tendency in the street seems to be toward shortened prices. The Pittsburgh Pirates having been moved forward to a 2 to 1 in the National League. They had been 3 to 1 in the early books. The Giants' odds also have been curtailed to 2 1-2 to 1 in the current odds.

Dope Out Races

If the street has the slightest idea of what it is all about, the major league races will result as follows:

American League: New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, Boston.

National League: Pittsburgh, New York, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Chicago, Boston, Brooklyn, Philadelphia.

Most of the handicappers will concur in the ranking of the first four in the American League, and agree that the Pirates, Giants and Cardinals should be one-two-three in the National League. It is doubtful that too many of them like the Giants over the Cardinals; yet the Street can see the latter at no better than a 3 1-2 to 1 shot. The quotations on both clubs probably have been influenced by Thevenow's failure to recover completely from his broken leg and the fact that the Giants seem to be rallying from the loss of Hornsby.

Cincy Is 5 to 1

However, there is nothing in particular by which the fact can be explained that Cincinnati is held at 5 to 1 and Chicago at 6 to 1. The coupling of Boston at Brooklyn at 15 to 1 and the placing of the Phillies last would appear to be logical business, although personally I think the Phils should be a shorter price than 40 to 1.

As for the clubs below the Yanks, the Athletics look natural at 2 1-2 to 1, in spite of rumors about internal discord. So do the Senators and Tigers at 3 to 1 and 5 to 1 respectively. However, it doesn't seem to be good reasoning to quote the White Sox at 15 to 1 as long as the Cleveland Indians are only 10 to 1. The St. Louis Browns at 20 to 1 and the Boston Red Sox at 40 to 1 are correctly aligned.

When you say a man gets his living out of dirt you must explain whether you mean farming, politics or literature.

Leading Industrial Stocks Turn Over In Enormous Volume

SIGNS POINT TO TIGHTER MONEY

New Specialties and Public Utilities See Action During First Hour

Markets at a Glance

Railroad stocks firm; industrial stocks irregular; domestic bonds irregular; foreign bonds steady; grain strong; copper firm; oil steady; cotton steady; rubber firm; sugar steady; pig iron firm; foreign exchange irregular.

New York, March 31—The leading industrial stocks were turned over in enormous volume at the beginning of trading today, the rush to buy General Electric, Westinghouse, General Motors and Radio fairly sweeping the floor brokers and trades off their feet. Radio lost about a point at the beginning. But General Electric and Westinghouse jumped three points each in heavy trading and General Motors moved up two points to 194, standing for a brief period on the same price level as its nearest market rival.

Nothing approaching the spectacular activities in the stock market was promised in the weekend business reviews of the leading mercantile agencies and banking houses. Commercial gains have been less vigorous and widespread than had been anticipated, according to R. G. Dunn's which also commented on the backwardess of Easter demands, influenced by unemployment and variable weather. Stiffening of time money rates, with two increases in bankers' acceptance rates during the week and a heavy outard movement of American gold, were generally accepted as unmistakable signs of an approaching tightening on the money market as a whole.

When speculative interest appeared to lag in the high-priced industrial and motor stocks, pool operations were transferred near the end of the first hour to a new group of specialty and public utility stocks. American Steel Foundries was whipped along furiously in this period to above 70 for a 4-point gain, Sinclair Oil and Marland moved up to the highest prices in two years ,and Standard Oil of New Jersey was turned over rapidly around 41.

A huge buying wave from the outside points met profit taking sales in large volume on the floor of the stock exchange and for a period at the beginning of the second hour selling pressure predominated and prices were forced downward.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S MARKET

Chicago, March 31—Wheat prices averaged lower in the local market yesspond to Thursday's sharp upturn and terday. Failure of Liverpool to reimproved weather conditions in the Southwest were the depressing factors.

After an easy opening there was a sharp ebulge due to commission house buying, but this met with heavy profit taking sales which carried prices down to the low points of the day. A few moderate rallies ensued, but closing prices were only a shade above the low points and showed declines of 1⅛@1⅜c. March finished at $1.42⅞, May, $1.42¾, July, $1.51¼ and September, $1.39½.

Corn News Mixed

Corn news was mixed and the trend of the market was erratic. Prices rose into the cost of the offers in the early trading and then sank into the bids, rallying to a steady close. Weakness in wheat was a factor in the setback. Prices finished ¼c higher to ¼c lower, with the March at 99⅝c, May, $1.01¾, July, $1.04¼ and September, $1.04⅝.

Reports of heavy planting of oats in abandoned wheat acreage under ideal conditions but pressure on that cereal. Prices were higher early, but declined with th stback in corn and failed to rally, finishing 3-8@1c lower.

Rye prices ruled easier with the weakness in wheat, closing 1-2@7-8c lower.

Cash Wheat Steady

Cash wheat was about steady, with the basis unchanged to 1-2c lower, the latter for hard grades. Prices were steady to 1c lower, compared with the previous day. Local sales totaled 24,000 bu. and sales to go to store 10,000 bu. Receipts, 96 cars. Deliveries were a little heavier at 208,000 bul.

Some wheat was said to be working for export, but no fresh figures were given in reports from the seaboard.

Buenos Aires as unchanged to 1-4c lower at midday. Winnipeg eased off with Liverpool and the local market, closing 1-8@7-8c lower.

World's shipments of wheat, North American clearances excluded, totaled 9,219,000 bu. for the week, against 8,860,000 bu a week ago. Bradstreet's North American shipments for the week were 7,045,201 bu. against 6,862,684 bu. a week ago. Total world's clearances of heat from the foregoing figures are 16,264,201 bu, as compared with 15,722,684 bu. a week ago.

Corn Rallies

Action in the corn market was as mixed and erratic as the news dealing with the yellow cereal. Locals sold freely on the early upturn and prices eased quickly, with a noticeable absence of important support. Later good buying developed and early sellers covered, prices rallying more than 1c from the low points.

Word came from Kansas City early in the day that a heavier movement of corn was anticipated at that point and that the commercial demand for cash corn was not as keen. Later advices, however, said the demand in the cash markets of the Southwest was very good. A local authorities said stocks on farms, particularly in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, were very light. It added that reports from Kansas indicated the estimates of production were being reduced.

Local cash corn market was active and strong, with the basis unchanged to 2c higher, and prices, 1c@3c up. Local sales totaled 80,000 bu. Receipts were moderate at 166 cars. Deliveries of March contracts were heavier at 331,000 bu.

No export business was indicated. Bradstreet's clearances of corn were 631,706 bu, compared with 539,000 bu a week ago.

"The Friendly Bank"

Established 1839. Center and Main.

TINY blades of grass pierce the crust of winter, softened by spring rains and sunshine, leaf buds loose their winter cloaks, spring blossoms lift their slumber wrappings, all nature wakens from the long winter sleep and breaks through to a new season.

But it required March, the month of preparation, to make this transformation possible. So does life bring to each of us times when we would "break through" difficulties that lie between us and the things we would accomplish—perplexities that are usually financial.

It requires a "March" of preparation to make the breaking-through possible—a growing account with an institution like ours, where a complete service is always available to aid customers to progress.

One Thing A Will Can Not Accomplish

Your own business ability in conserving and managing your property is something which you can not bequeath to your family.

Nevertheless, you can provide for the conservation and experienced management of this property by establishing a testamentary trust with The National City Bank & Trust Co. as trustee. Then your family will continue to receive regular income which in no way will be dependent on their own business ability.

Consult us today about this or your other banking problems. Our officers are always ready to give you prompt and courteous service.

TILLIE THE TOILER — SHE MAY GET TO WEAR THAT NEW GOWN, AFTER ALL — BY RUSS WESTOVER

MAC AFTER YOU TELL ME WHY YOU RUSHED ME ON THIS BOAT INSTEAD OF TAKING ME TO THAT BANQUET. THEN I'M NEVER GOING TO SPEAK TO YOU AGAIN
HERE'S WHERE I GET RID OF THAT FRENCH LID I JUST GOT HOME-SICK FOR THE U.S. TILLIE
3-31
I MIGHT ALSO TELL YOU THAT I HAD THE HOTEL MAID PACK ALL YOUR BAGGAGE AFTER YOU LEFT YOUR ROOM AND HAD IT SENT DOWN TO THE BOAT
I SUPPOSE YOU THOUGHT THAT WAS CLEVER IN HAVING THAT TAXI DRIVER CARRY ME ON TO THE BOAT!
NO IF I'D HAVE BEEN CLEVER I'D HAVE CARRIED YOU ON MYSELF AND SAVED TEN BUCKS
AND TO THINK I DIDN'T GET A CHANCE TO WEAR THIS NEW GOWN AT THAT BANQUET
HOLY SMOKE THEY MUST HAVE A GOLF COURSE ON THIS BOAT
DON'T BE SILLY MAC HE'S PROBABLY GONE TO A COSTUME BALL

Believe it or not, a man named Sandy MacIntyre was recently found in a poor house. Even instinct and nationality take a back seat for bills and debts. Very likely poor Sandy preferred to buy what he needed on time rather than unbutton his pockets and part with the cash, and eventually he owed more than he could pay. But at any rate it's good to know that scattered bills can be easily scratched from your list of worries by using The City Loan plan of setting up.

When payments become troublesome, or whenever you need money for any purpose come to The City Loan and try out a plan that's made for you.

SUSPEND ALL OHIO POLITICS

Friend and Foe in Campaign Send Messages of Regret

Everywhere today there was sorrow at the passing of Senator Willis.

Announcement was made at both Willis and Hoover headquarters that political activities throughout the state will be suspended until after the funeral and burial of Senator Willis.

Col. Carmi A. Thompson, Cleveland and former Secretary of of State Todd H. Brown, Columbus, managers, respectively, of the Willis and Hoover pre-primary campaigns in Ohio, today declined to discuss political activities or future plans affecting their statewide organizations.

Confined to his bed with what was reported to be a serious case of "flu" Colonel Brown issued the following statement:

"The death of Senator Willis is the cause of profound regret to me, as it is to all Ohioans. My heartfelt sympathy is expressed to his family and to his friends."

Thompson Shocked

Colonel Brown telegraphed the widow of Senator Willis as follows:

"In your hour of sorrow and bereavement I wish to express my profound regret to you upon the passing of your distinguished husband. You have my heartfelt sympathy."

Col. Carmi Thompson said "The sudden death of Senator Willis was a great shock. Senator Willis and I were personal friends from boyhood. I have always known him to be high-minded and clean in his political as well as his personal life. He stood for the best in public affairs and, also, in all private and personal matters. The nation has suffered a great loss in his death."

Senator Fess, junior senator from Ohio, said:

"A brilliant political career has been prematurely cut off. His sudden death has unnerved me, as he was a close personal friend. In fact, both Mrs. Fess and I were his teachers at Ohio Northern, and he spent much time at our home. He was like one of our family."

Dies in Prime of Life

Vice President Dawes said: "Senator Willis dies in the prime of life and in the fullness of his powers. His death is a loss to the country and will be mourned as personal by thousands of friends. He was a sincere and upright man."

Speaker Longworth: "We are great friends, and his death is a great shock."

Representative Burton, Republican of Ohio, responsible for Hoover's entry into the Ohio campaign against Willis, said: "While we are engaged in the midst of an animated campaign this does not interfere with personal relations which were exceedingly friendly. I cannot express my sorrow at the sudden death of Senator Willis."

MRS. MARY E. PHELPS FUNERAL HELD TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs Mary Elizabeth Phelps, whose death occurred Wednesday morning, were held this afternoon, at 1:30 o'clock, at her home 585 Henry-st, and at Oakland Evangelical Church, the pastor, Rev. H. E. Williamson, officiating. The body was laid to rest in Marion Cemetery.

TAKEN TO HOME

Mrs. Sam Nickelos was removed from City Hospital to her home, 120 Waterloo-st, yesterday afternoon in the C. E. Curtis & Co., invalid car.

MYERS L. JONES, 54, IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Prominent Marion County Farmer Succumbs After Long Illness

Myers L. Jones, 54, Marion County farmer and stockbuyer, died at 9 o'clock this morning at his home, Pleasant Acres, south of the city. Mr. Jones had been suffering from sugar diabetes for more than 15 years. Funeral arrangements have not been made, although services and burial will take place probably Monday, relatives said.

Mr. Myers was born south of LaRue, March 27, 1874, and was the son of "Ob" and Martha Lesley Jones, both lifelong residents of near LaRue, who preceded him in death. Mr. Myers was a retired school teacher and has spent the latter years of his life in farming and stockbuying. He was a member of the Baptist Church at LaRue.

Surviving with him are his widow, formerly Miss Laura Williams, two daughters, Miss Neva Jones, at home, and Mrs. Marie Pratt of Canton, a son, P. M. Jones, this city, three sisters, Mrs. Ella Miller, Mrs. Lissa Tilton, and Mrs. Minta Williams, and two brothers, John and Albert Jones, all of LaRue and three grandchildren. A daughter preceded him in death in infancy.

APPEALS MADE FOR CHURCH IN MEXICO

Marion Catholics Join in Prayers for Aid of Persecuted Brethren

Prayers are being asked daily at St. Mary's Catholic Church for their persecuted brethren in Mexico, in accordance with a joint appeal made to the 2,500,000 members of the Church, issued by the 11 bishops of the Cincinnati province, Thursday. Prayers for Catholics in Mexico had been asked in the local church previous to that time, however.

The area represented in the call for prayers includes Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and Michigan. Ohio bishops signing the appeal were Joseph Schrembs of Cleveland, James J. Hartley of Columbus, and Samuel Stritch of Toledo.

"Fraternal charity obliges us to pray without ceasing for our persecuted brethren in Mexico, just as we would plead for prayers were in their present pitiable condition. Never has a more diabolical persecution been waged against the church than that now raging in Mexico," the appeal read.

LEAVE FOR DAYTON

Local Jr. O. U. A. M. Members To Witness Record Initiation

About 15 members of Lime City Council, No. 206, Junior Order United American Mechanics, were to leave this afternoon for Dayton, where they will be in attendance tonight at a district initiation, witnessing the exemplifying of the ritual for the largest class of candidates in the history of the state. The class is said to total nearly 400 candidates.

STRANDED AUTOISTS GIVEN RELIEF HERE

Six Travelers, Including Infant, Rescued After Spending Two Nights in Barn

A party of six automobile tourists, whose ages ranged from that of a grandmother, 65 years old, down to a 19 month-old infant, were found in destitute circumstances about two miles north of the city yesterday after they had made their quarters for two nights in the haymow of a barn located near the Upper Sandusky-rd.

Residents in that locality came to the rescue of the stranded travelers, who resumed their trip after being provided with food and funds. They stated that they were enroute from Columbus to Toledo, where the three men in the party hoped to obtain employment. The trip was being made in a dilapidated Dodge touring car.

Submerged in Hay

While using the barn as temporary lodging quarters, the tourists buried themselves in the hay as a protection against cold. When discovered by residents of the locality, the 19-months-old infant was submerged in the hay with only its head protruding. In spite of this protection, it was suffering severely from the cold.

In addition to the infant, there were three men and two women in the party.

DR. R. G. M'MURRAY IN RACE FOR CORONER

Files Declaration of Candidacy with Board of Elections Today

Formal declaration of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for coroner was filed by Dr. Robert G. McMurray today with the Marion County Board of Elections. He is the first entry for the coroner's race from either the Democratic or Republican ranks.

Dr. McMurray, who resides at 209 Uhler-av and has his office in the Elite Apartment building on S. Main-st, comes from a family of physicians. He is a son of the late Dr. J. A. McMurray and grandson of Dr. A. P. McMurray, one of Marion's pioneer doctors.

He began the practice of medicine here about a year ago following graduation from O. S. U. in the class of '27. His education prior to that included two years at Harding High School, three years at Kenyon College, graduation from Howe Military Academy at Howe, Ind., following a two-year course, and a summer course at Harvard University taken while attending O. S. U.
